STEPS OFF CURB TO BOARD A CAR, KILLED BY AUTO

John B. Bruns, Salesman, Run Over by Machine Driven by Bank Clerk at Gustine and Arsenal St.

108TH SUCH FATALITY HERE THIS YEAR

Robert Eberle, 19, Operator of the Car, Says He Didn't See Victim in Time to Avoid Accident.

John B. Bruns, 24 years old, a salesman, of 2820 Accomac street, was killed early today by an automobile as he stepped from the curb into the street to board a street car at Arsenal street and Gustine avenue.

Robert Eberle, 19 years old, a bank clerk, of 3654 Juniata street, was driving east in Arsenal street, a little in advance of an eastbound Tower Grove car. As he passed Gustine avenue, about 1 a. m., Bruns stepped into the street to hail the approaching street car. Eberle reported he did not observe the pedestrian until the instant the latter stepped in front of the automobile.

At city hospital Bruns was found to have suffered a fractured skull, fractured left leg and internal injuries. He died at 2:25 a. m. Eberle was released on bond.

Bruns' death was the 108th motor vehicle fatality in St. Louis this year. Last year at this time there were 100 such deaths.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Niedringhaus Hurt in Auto Collision.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Niedringhaus of 822 Mehlville avenue, University City, were seriously injured when their automobile collided with another automobile and was overturned at Spring and Page avenues, St. Louis County, Tuesday evening.

Both were pinioned in the overturned car for several minutes, until other motorists succeeded in extricating them. They were taken to St. Mary's Hospital, where it was said Mrs. Niedringhaus had suffered internal injuries and a probable fracture of several ribs. Niedringhaus suffered a fracture of a small bone in the left knee and one in the right foot. They were removed to their home.

Fred Theebe, a clay miner, living on Walton road, St. Louis County, was the driver of the other car. He complained to county authorities that Niedringhaus, who was driving in Spring avenue, failed to observe the boulevard stop sign at Page avenue. The automobiles collided at right angles. Theebe obtained a warrant charging Niedringhaus with careles sand reckless driving. Niedringhaus, who is 35 years old, is a special agent of the Missouri State Life Insurance Co.

Bus Passengers Hurt When It Hits Truck Trailer.

An eastbound People's Motor bus, carrying 24 passengers, collided with a trailer on the rear of a truck belonging to the International Shoe Co., about 9 o'clock this morning, at Thirteenth street and Washington boulevard. Two of the passengers were taken to the City Hospital for treatment, and the rest escaped with a severe shaking. Bol Kurlander, 65 years old, 5821 Clemens avenue, received a lacerated left knee, and Mrs. Helga Hopper, 35 years old, of 4553 Delmar boulevard, was found to be suffering from shock.

Leland Maples, the bus driver, 22 years old, 5232 Delmar boulevard, said he attempted to avoid hitting the truck, when his bus skidded on the wet pavement, and the rear end crashed into the trailer hitched to the truck. The International Shoe Co. truck was driven by James Burke, 165 Sidney street.

WISCONSIN ELECTION SEPT. 29

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 20.—The special election for United States senator to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Robert M. La Follette, will be held Sept. 29, Gov. Blaine issued the call today. The special primary to nominate candidates for the office will be held two weeks before the election, the law provides.

Secretary of State R. Zimmerman said the special preliminary election will be called for Sept. 1. Nomination papers for the primary must be filed 18 days before the primary, which will be Aug. 28, thus leaving eight days from today for the circulation of the petition.

GASOLINE TAX EXCEEDS ESTIMATE BY 42 PER CENT

Collection of $2,131,177 in State in Six Months Points to Total of $4,500,000 for Year.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 20.—Collections of the State tax of 2 cents a galloon on gasoline used for motor vehicle fuel in the first six months the tax has been effective shows an increase of 42 per cent over estimates of proponents of the tax when it was voted to provide additional funds for State road construction and maintenance.

The tax collected from Jan. 1 last, when the levy became effective, until July 1, totaled $2,131,177 on 106,558,865 gallons of gasoline sold in Missouri during the six months.

Thirty-two St. Louis companies paid $781,316 to the State, which had been collected from automobile owners. Kansas City paid $497,387.

When the State gasoline tax was proposed, the State Highway Commission estimated the tax would yield approximately $3,000,000 a year. Based on collections thus far, the revenue from the tax for 1925 is estimated at approximately $4,500,000.

The tax in most instances is collected from the wholesaler at the bulk stations, eliminating the necessity of collections from the retail filling stations. The Standard Oil Co. of Indiana paid the largest tax in the first six months. For its St. Louis business it paid $296,572.40. At Kansas City the company paid $182,747; St. Joseph, $64,668.

Among the large tax collections in St. Louis were the following: Roxana Petroleum Co., $65,111; Puritan Oil Corporation, $47,717; Lubrite Sales Corporation, $59,492; Pierce Petroleum Co., $156,044; National Refining Co., $15,488; Benzo Gas Motor Fuel Co., $15,057; Automobile Gas Co., $48,781; Liberty Bell Oil Co., $8592; St. Louis Gas and Fuel Co., $8176.

MONSTER STILL ON RIVER BANK IS SEIZED

Dry Agents Find Apparatus Standing 15 Feet High on the Illinois Side.

Acting on private information, Group Chief Scruggs and five other Federal prohibition agents raided a large still on the Illinois bank of the Mississippi river, about a mile south of Venice, this morning, and in doing so discovered a smaller still in the vicinity. The big one, Chief Scruggs said, was one of the largest he had ever seen.

It was in a specially constructed 30x90-foot frame building, and it stood about 15 fet high, having 600 gallons' capacity. Near it were four vats holding 8000 to 10,000 gallons of grain mash each, while just outside the building was a board-covered vat containing about 45,000 gallons of fruit mash. There was about 120 gallons of alcohol in the building, apparently a recent "run," and 40 or more sacks of sugar. The men in charge, who said they were Nick Karacaras, a Greek, and Philip Toka, a Syrian, both of St. Louis, were arrested. They said they worked there for St. Louisans.

The smaller still, of about 50 gallons' capacity, was in a shed 200 feet away, apparently operating independent of the big one. Thirty barrels of mash were there. The negro attendants, who said they were Cornelius Hollins and Charles Charlston, both of Brooklyn, Ill., were arrested.

AUTOPSY OVER WOMAN DISCLOSES POISON

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 20.—A coroner's jury today will investigate the death by poisoning of Mrs. H. B. Hunt, for which John Gobel, wealthy Daytona, Fla., realty dealer is being held.

An autopsy, conducted by Dr. E. K. Judon, county physician, yesterday disclosed evidence that a powerful corrosive poison caused her death. However, a qualitative analysis has not yet been applied.

Mrs. Hunt was arrested Tuesday, following a warrant sworn by Gobel, charging larceny of a diamond ring. Gobel then visited the jail and saw Mrs. Hunt and told her he was thinking of withdrawing the warrant. He said he wanted to "fix things up" and was left alone with her.

A few minutes later the woman came running out of the jail office, police said, crying that Gobel had made her drink something.

She then threw her arms around Gobel's neck asking "why did you do that?" Later, however, at the hospital just before she died she said: "Well I guess I did a good job of it." Gobel claims she was a drug addict.

Shortly after the incident in jail, Earl Venno, night officer, went to the back of the jail and found two men who tried to get away. He locked them up on suspicion. These men were Frank Gobel, brother of John, and W. H. Henley.

Where they were standing, Venno found a small package of powder, which had been taken for analysis.

Mrs. Hunt is understood to be a native of Lexington, Ky., where her maiden name was Bryant. Gobel is said to be married and to have children. He came from the West several years ago and is said to have invested profitably in East Coast real estate.

BUREAU CHIEF RESIGNS AT REQUEST OF JARDINE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Dr. Henry C. Taylor, chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the Agricultural Department, has resigned at the request of Secretary Jardine.

Thomas P. Cooper, dean of the Agricultural College of the University of Kentucgy, has been chosen to succeed him.

Taylor quit the department, where he has served since 1919, only after Jardine, with whose policies he does not agree, directly requested him to do so.

The controversy came to a climax when Jardine, from a sick bed at Walter Reed Hospital, sent word that the resignation must be submitted at once.

WOMAN'S STORY OF SEIZURE OF HER HOME BY CONVICTS

Fugitives, Who Had Killed Two Oregon Guards, Were Polite, Farmer's Wife Says.

FAMILY FACED WEAPONS FOR DAY

Men Spoke of Mistakes of Past Life and Hopelessness of Their Present Position.

Mrs. Isabel Newman, 53 years old, who lives on a farm four miles from Oregon City, Ore., was the unwilling hostess on Monday to three convicts who had escaped a few hours before from the State prison, after killing two guards. The men are still at large. Mrs. Newman has written for the New York World and the Post-Dispatch her story of the day she lived under the muzzles of loaded weapons in the hands of men who only a few hours before had shot their way to freedom.

By MRS. ISABEL NEWMAN.

OREGON CITY, Ore., Aug. 20.—One does not go through an experience of that kind without remembering every detail correctly. I had slept with my small daughter, who had been ill the day before, in the davenport in our living room. The front door was open but the screen door closed and locked.

About 30 minutes to 5 o'clock, while still quite dark, I heard a car drive into our yard. Then two men rushed up on the porch and began shaking the screen door and said, "Open the door and let us in."

I was not frightened, thinking it was friends or relatives who had come from some distance, but I was surprised at their command and asked perhaps the most natural question, "Who are you?"

"Don't Be Frightened."

It was then, and so quickly done one could hardly realize, that the leader of the gang removed the screen from a window near our bed and climbed through. He had a revolver in his hand but did not point it at me, but said immediately after climbing through the window, "Now, don't be frightened, we are not going to hurt you. We are three convicts from the penitentiary." I said calmly, "Oh, you want some breakfast, I suppose." He said, "That's the idea, and we are not going to harm any of you as long as you do as we say and don't give us away." I told him we would take his word for it and if he would get out of the room just a minute till I got dressed, I would start breakfast. He then asked who else was in the house and I said, "My husband is here." He then inquired where and started in the room to awaken him.

I called my husband, but he was sound asleep and the convict, Tom Murray, had to shake him to awaken him and, pointing his gun at him, told him who they were and ordered him to get up.

With my husband's help we soon had breakfast prepared, without command or dictation from the convicts. They ate ravenously and expressed their apreciation of the home-cooked meal.

One convict ate at the table, while the other two stood guard at all times during the day. After breakfast, as calmly and quietly as though our house was filled with invited guests, we went about our usual morning duties although we had no chance to speak privately.

We were ordered by Murray to do our usual work close to the house so the neighbors would not suspicion anything unusual.

Convicts Watchful.

At all times during the day one convict was in the kitchen, where he could guard my actions and the movements of my husband and sons in the back yard. At all times they were perfectly gentlemanly and polite to both of us.

Tom Murray and Ellsworth Kelly remarked that they had hated to put us to so much trouble and offered to help in any way they could. They did not, as has been stated, wash dishes, but Tom Murray said when I started to sweep the kitchen floor: "Let me do that. I can sweep."

After sweeping the kitchen he remarked that he might as well sweep up the cigar ashes in the other room, which he did, while Kelly guarded the kitchen.

The other convict, Willos, seemed to be detailed for guard duty in the living room, so we saw little of him. He spoke boastfully of his many crimes, and especially of his ability to get away from all penitentiaries. His story to me was:

"When I was a baby about four weeks old—my mother told me this

RETURNS STAR HE STOLE YEARS AGO AS MIDSHIPMAN

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Aug. 20.—A brass star from the pedestal of "Old Ironsides'" steering wheel came back today to be placed in its original position from where it was taken 40 years ago by a young midshipman, who "solely because of the devil who in my early years did often take up his residence within me, did unscrew and pry from her wheel abaft the quarterdeck a brass star."

The name of the man who returned the star and wrote the accompanying letter was withheld by Admiral L. R. Steiguer of the Charleston Navy Yard, who is interested in repairing and restoring the old U. S. S. Constitution to its original state. The writer said he climbed aboard the vessel in the navy yard at Kittery, Me., and took the star. He now has a son who is a naval officer who expects to come to Boston to place the insignia back in its original position.

GUNS MISS TRAILING TARGET BUT NEARLY HIT AIRPLANE

Antiaircraft Batteries Fail to Score Real or Theoretical Hit in 180 Shots.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Fort Tilden's antiaircrft guns and dangerously near drawing real blood Tuesday night in the Sixty-second Coast Artillery's mimic warfare with the Twentieth Bombardment Squadron, air service. A half-dozen shrapnel shells from Battery C narrowly missed a huge Martin bomber, though they failed with 180 shots to score a hit—real or theoretical—on the large sleeve target trailing 2100 feet behind the plane.

This was revealed in the laconic report of Lieut. William J. Atkinson, who piloted the plane 10 times up and down the coast off Rockaway point before the blazing guns. He wrote, without complaint or comment:

"On the last time across course C-1 (the final course of the tests) we could see shells burst high, to the right and in front of our plane."

COOLIDGE KEPT WILSON'S PLEDGE TO THE BELGIANS

BELGIAN TERMS WILL BE DENIED FRANCE AND ITALY

Members of the American Commission Emphatic in Asserting There Will Be No Differentiation.

"ALL OBLIGATIONS IN SAME CLASS"

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—France has officially notified the Treasury that her Debt Funding Commission will start for Washington about the middle of September to arrange a settlement of the French debt to the United States, now figured at $4,210,556,948.

Coming so closely upon the heels of the announcement of the agreement reached with Belgium, this message, received yesterday, is regarded as a move to allay possible criticism that France and Italy now are the only large debtors of the United States that have not taken definite steps to arrange payment of their war obligations.

Secretary Mellon, chairman of the American Debt Commission, announced that he had been "officially informed that a commission would sail from France about the middle of September to negotiate with the American commission a funding of the French-American debt," but that he had not yet been advised of the probable personnel of the delegation.

Treasury officials are eager to learn what reaction the Belgian settlement will produce in France and Italy, which may read in the pointed language of the announcement of the Belgian settlement that they need not expect similar privileged treatment.

Although members of the American commission fear that France and Italy will renew more vigorously than previously their plea for differentiation between the amounts borrowed during the war and those borrowed after it, now that Belgium has succeeded in having the distinction recognized, the Americans are emphatic in asserting that any such argument will be rejected.

Belgium's Special Status.

Both France and Italy at the peace conference at Versailles acknowledged Belgium's special status and acceded to the agreement whereby Belgium's creditors were to look to German reparations for payment of war loans. Neither France nor Italy at that time undertook to plead a similar privilege. Consequently the American commissioners contend that such privilege cannot well be argued now and they are hopeful of inducing the French and Italians to take that view of it.

The Treasury is confident that the American public and Congress will approve the arrangements with Belgium. Some flareback is expected from the irreconcilables, who may question whether there was any "moral obligation" to accord Belgium special treatment by virtue of anything done at Paris, but administration officials are confident that the agreement will be ratified quickly by Congress.

Assuming that the American Debt Commission remains obdurate toward French or Italian endeavors to separate pre-armistice and post-war loans, about the only forms of leniency that can be shown France and Italy are said to be abatements of accrued interest and moratoriums.

Liberal Terms in Prospect.

The Treasury thinks France may be satisfied with the terms extended to other countries that have agreed to pay up, provided a sufficiently long breathing spell is granted before payments start, or that the payments for the first decade or two be relatively small.

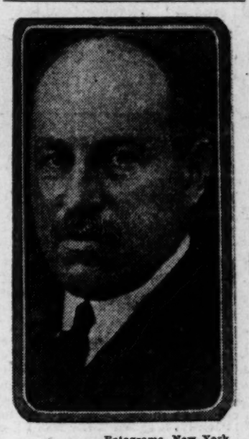

It is thought probable France and Italy will be treated liberally, so that technically terms of settlement will remain the same for all nations—62 years in which to pay and interest at 3½ per cent.

What Nations Borrowed.

France received during and after the war in actual loans from the United States, $3,340,516,042. Under the Treasury system of calculation, interest is figured at 4½

STATE-WIDE ORGANIZATION OF PEACE OFFICERS PROPOSED

Letters were sent to all the Chiefs of Police, Sheriffs, Marshals, Constables and other police officers of Missouri, numbering about 2000, by Chief of Police Gerk today, with a request that all these officers organize as a body for greater efficiency and cooperation in the campaign against crime.

Chief Gerk has no detailed plans in mind, but it is his desire to create a spirit of action among all those officers in Missouri charged with preventing crime and catching criminals. He asks for expressions on the proposal from those addressed, saying the organization would "reduce crime to a minimum and make our work much easier and more certain, with all working toward a common goal."

The organization might accomplish much of what a State constabulary would, the Chief thinks. Meetings of the organization might be held twice a year. The proposal was made with the approval of the Police Board.

LED U. S. TO DROP INTEREST ON DEBT, MELLON DECLARES

Secretary Says Promise of War President at Peace Conference Came After Belgian Threat to Quit.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—When the American Government recognized Belgium's claim to special treatment in payment of her war debts, Secretary Mellon said today, it redeemed a promise of President Wilson, which at the time it was made was so important that it forestalled disruption of the Versailles peace conference.

The Treasury Secretary, who is head of the American Debt Funding Commission, declared this circumstance was weighed carefully by the commissioners and by President Coolidge in agreeing to remit the interest on all Belgium borrowed from the United States during the war.

Mellon said the pledge of President Wilson was made at a time when Belgium was about to withdraw from the peace negotiations and that Secretary Hoover, an adviser of the Versailles conference and a member of the debt commission, testified during the debt discussions here that the influence of Mr. Wilson's promise on the peace settlement was indisputable.

Moral Obligation Recognized.

Secretary Mellon's explanation was the first disclosure of the circumstances that led the American Government to deviate from the policy of nonrecognition of any peculiar status for Belgium by virtue of the promise of the War President at Versailles. That there would be no such recognition was stated many times on high authority before the discussions here began, but when the history of the peace conference was reviewed and laid before President Coolidge at Plymouth, it was decided that the moral obligation asserted by the Belgians could not be denied.

The stage at which Belgium was induced by President Wilson not to withdraw from Versailles, Mellon said, was reached when it had been decided not to allow a Belgian claim against Germany for the expense of taking up the wartime currency forced upon the Belgians during the occupation, and not to give Belgium the right to collect from Germany for the cost of machinery and plants actually moved out of the country by the Germans.

The rejection of these two items had aroused Belgian resentment to the point that her treaty negotiators were about to withdraw, when it was agreed that these claims would be offset in a measure by special treatment of Belgium's debt to her allies and associates.

German Payments a Factor.

This circumstance and the estimated ability of Belgium to pay were said by Mellon to have guided the American Debt Commissioners to a final settlement. In computing the ability to pay, Germany's prospective payments to Belgium were a factor, as well as the technical situation in the international exchange field.

Belgium, with a depreciated currency and some loss of income from the international investments of her citizens, could not be expected to pay at this time the $12,000,000 per year which would be required to discharge the full interest and principal. The gold for purchase of international exchange would not be available to her.

VICTOR LAWSON, CHICAGO NEWS PUBLISHER, DIES

WON FORTUNE IN PENNY JOURNALISM

He Gave Liberally to Philanthropy and Maintained Children's Sanitarium — Independent in Politics.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Victor Fremont Lawson, editor and publisher of the Chicago Daily News, died last night at his home on Lake Shore Drive of a heart ailment from which he had suffered frequently in recent years. He was one of the founders of the Associated Press.

The funeral will be held at 11 a. m. Monday, in the New England Congregational Church, where he had served as president of the Board of Trustees and to which he had been a liberal contributor for many years.

Lawson, who was nearly 75 years old, became seriously ill only three days ago, although he had not been in robust health for years. It was a recurrence of myocarditis, the heart ailment from which he had suffered frequent attacks. His associates said that overwork had contributed to his condition.

Though he had been ordered by his physicians to remain in bed, he was unable to stand the enforced inactivity and on Tuesday, against the advice of doctors, he insisted on getting out of bed. Yesterday morning he had a relapse and for a time it was feared death was imminent, but he rallied and later in the day appeared much better.

Late last evening he suffered a sinking spell from which he never rallied. With him at the end were a few lifetime associates and his niece, Mrs. Clark N. Cavanee of Chicago.

Few Relatives Survive.

Besides this niece, only four other near relatives survive, a brother, Iver, of San Diego, Cal., and a brother-in-law, William Harrison Bradley, and two nieces, all of Ridgefield, Conn. Funeral arrangements will not be made pending receipt of the wishes of these distant relatives. Lawson's wife died in 1914. They had no children.

Lawson, the son of a newspaper man, was one of the first advocates of a low-priced newspaper and the idea gained him both success and wealth. The Chicago Daily News was the first Western paper to make a success as a penny sheet.

He next gained distinction as an advocate of co-operative news gathering and was one of the founders of the Associated Press, based on this principle. From 1894 to 1900 he was president of the Associated Press when it was incorporated under the laws of Illinois. From 1900 he had been a member of the board of directors of the present organization.

Associate of M. E. Stone.

Lawson was born in Chicago, Sept. 9, 1850, the son of Iver and Melling Lawson. He was educated at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and returned to Chicago to learn the rudiments of the newspaper business under his father, who established the Scandinavian.

Upon the death of the father, Lawson assumed charge of the publishing business. He was thus engaged when he met Melville E. Stone, later associated with Lawson in the publication of the News and afterward general manager and now counselor of the Associated Press.

Stone established the Chicago Daily News, rented quarters in the Scandinavian office to get out his paper and published the first issue Christmas day, 1875. Shortly after Stone's two partners sold out to him and in July, 1876, Stone in turn sold his original interest to Lawson who took charge of the paper with Stone as editor.

Founded Morning Paper.

To preserve the independence of the paper, each man agreed to buy no securities of public service corporations from his share of the profits. In 1881 they started a morning edition and seven years later Lawson purchased Stone's interest and became sole proprietor.

Soon afterward he changed the name of his morning publication to the Chicago Record, later merging it with the Times-Herald, when he called it the Record-Herald. Because he did not wish to be connected with a paper publishing on Sunday, he turned over the property of the Record-Herald to bondholders in 1914, making them a present of the capital stock of a par value of $2,300,000.

One of the principles to which Lawson always attributed the success of the News was its wealth of features, particularly those of interest to women readers, including short stories, table recipes, fashions and small talk.

In politics his newspaper prided itself on its independence.

Lawson was interested in many public and civic enterprises, many of them of a philanthropic character, and to these causes the influence of his newspaper was frequently thrown.

Contributor to Charity.

He was one of the first advocates of postal savings banks. He gave freely to charity but the extent of his contributions probably will never be known. He established a sanitarium in Lincoln Park through the Daily News fresh air fund, gave heavily to the Y. M. C. A. and during the war published a book containing thousands of bits of information of interest to the soldiers overseas, intending to distribute it to every soldier free of charge, but shipping space could not be obtained.

Immediately following the war, when news print paper was at an almost exorbitant price, he kept many small papers from suspending by supplying them with news print from the large stocks which he had bought in advance.

He was married in 1880 to Miss Jessie S. Bardley of Chicago. She died in 1914.

A Dealer in Pennies.

When he established his penny newspaper, he was handicapped by the fact that there were few pennies in Chicago. People liked the paper but pennies were scarce. So he scoured the country for pennies and got them into circulation here. He is said to have dealt in pennies by the bushel. His truckloads of pennies started him on the road to wealth and fame.

Opponent of Lorimer.

Lawson fought former Senator William Lorimer in politics and upon occasion of a speech by Lorimer attacking Lawson, another Chicago newspaper, friendly to the News called Lawson to ask about the speech. Lawson urged that it be used without change. The next day he answered it.

Lawson barely escaped death nine years ago when entering the building housing The Associated Press in New York. A piece of cornice fell and he suffered injuries from flying splinters which caused him to limp thereafter.

"The best days of Victor Lawson's life in recent years," Henry Justin Smith, former news editor of the News said, "was the day of the fake armistice report. That was the most trying day that American afternoon newspapers had gone through for decades. The ordeal lasted two hours. Lawson refused to be stampeded by rumor or to permit an extra to be issued on the strength of the rumor. When at the end of two hours, his judgment was vindicated, he showed no elation, just as he had betrayed neither panic nor weakness under the strain of waiting."

Had Delayed Vacation.

Lawson recently had been planning a vacation on his estate at Green Lake, Wis., once a summer cottage to which he had taken his bride on a honeymoon, but since transformed into a country village. But he stayed in Chicago to attend to business matters, mostly philanthropic enterprises, and the trip was never made.

A number of men who have won distinction in newspaper work and in other professions served on the News under Lawson. Among them are Eugene Field, Slason Thompson, John F. Ballantyne, Dr. F. W. Reilly, John T. McCutcheon, George Ade, George Harvey, Ray Stannard Baker and Henry Barrett Chamberlin.

Lawson is the second Chicago newspaper publisher to die within a yera, John C. Eastman, editor and owner of the Chicago Daily Journal, having died several months ago.

Since the death of his wife, Lawson's mansion had housed only himself and his servants. One of the disappointments of his life was the fact that he had no children—and his intimates have hinted that this disappointment had much to do with his favorite hobby, which was to provide in Lincoln Park a sanitarium for the care of sick children.

On Sundays it was his habit to go to Graceland Cemetery, no matter what the season or the weather and place a wreath on the grave of his wife. It was for her that he built what was at the time the costliest home in Chicago. There he had one of the largest private libraries in the world.

TWO NAVY PLANES WITH MACMILLAN PARTLY DISABLED

POLAR BEAR SHOT BY SHIP'S FIREMAN

By the Associated Press.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 20.—Donald B. MacMillan, the Arctic explorer, expects to return from Etah, Greenland, next month, he advised in a message received here today by the managing editor of the Evening Press.

The message said all were well and happy on the Bowdoin and Peary and looking forward to their return in September. If he maintains his usual schedule, Lieutenant-Commander MacMillan will reach Maine, about Sept. 20.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. — Two of the three navy planes with the MacMillan Arctic expedition are now out of commission, the National Geographic Society is informed in a message from Commander MacMillan.

Burning gasoline, spreading over the water at Etah, Greenland, the expedition's base, burned one of the wings of the NA-3 so badly Tuesday, he reported, that a new one would be required. He also related that another Liberty motor had gone out of commission, and that the last spare was being installed.

Will Hamper Operations.

Damage to the NA-3 will prevent or greatly hamper further flying operations of the expedition until it is repaired, since the policy has been that the planes must not go out singly, and the NA-2, damaged in rough weather recently at Etah, has not yet been put back into service.

Word of the expedition's new troubles was made public after the society had announced that one of its major objectives, exploration from the air of the vast Polar Sea, never before crossed by white men, had been abandoned because of weather conditions.

The message yesterday, reporting the latest accident, said:

"The navy planes are having tough luck. Another Liberty motor out of commission. The last spare is now being installed and our work has not really begun, since we have at least a thousand miles' flight to place us beyond the point in the Polar seas reached by my dog teams in 1914.

"A fire last night in the water, caused by the spreading of gasoline on the surface, burned one of the wings of the NA-3 so badly that a new one must be substituted. Two planes are now temporarily out of commission. Orders are that one plane must not fly alone across Smith Sound.

Polar Bear Is Bagged.

A fireman on the Peary strolled away over the hills last night to hunt Arctic hare. To his surprise and by unusual luck he got a polar bear, and succeeded in killing it at the first shot, with an army Springfield. Was ready to run if his first attempt failed. Williams and Melson obtained good films last night of Eskimos harpooning walrus. Jaynes and Vorce returned with a back load of Arctic hare and one blue fox."

Early approach of the Arctic winter may lead one or the two ships of the expedition to return ahead of schedule.

Although officials of the National Geographic Society said they had received no communication indicating that the party might split up, and one of the vessels precede the other in its return, they admitted that this was a possibility.

When informed of a report to this effect, it was said that if Commander MacMillan should decide upon such a plan, it probably would be to enable the navy flying unit with the expedition to leave the Far North before the closing in of winter weather.

It also was pointed out that the scientific work still to be attempted in Greenland, Labrador and Baffin Island would not necessarily require the efforts of the entire party, and that, in view of this, a part might return in advance. They were of the belief, however, that if this was done there would be only a matter of 10 days or two weeks in the time elapsing between the arrival home of the two ships.

Five Years for $9.60 Holdup.

Frank Smith, 56 years old, a negro, yesterday pleaded guilty of robbery and was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary by Circuit Judge Hamilton. He admitted robbing a negro taxicab driver of $9.60 on April 23 last.

Ionized Belt in Upper Air Guides Magnetic Waves

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Joint investigations by the Naval Research Laboratory and the department of terrestrial magnetism of the Carnegie Institution in Washington have resulted in confirming the theory of an ionized region in the higher levels of the earth's atmosphere.

The conclusion from observations is that the plane of maximum density lies at varying distances above the surface of the earth, rising and falling as atmospheric conditions change.

In making this announcement yesterday, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur referred to the ionized region as the "roof of the earth," adding that the definite confirmation of the theory of its existence promises to have a far-reaching effect on the development of radio.

Deflection of Magnetic Waves.

The conception of an ionized region originated independently with Heaviside in England and Kenelly in the United States. It is known in the scientific world as the Kennelly-Heaviside layer. It acts as a deflecting surface to electric-magnetic waves, under which they are guided around the earth in a way similar to that which sound waves run under the domes of the Capitol in Washington and of St. Paul's Cathedral, London.

The conclusions of the investigators are based on an analysis of the phenomenon known as "skip distance," checked by a simple mechanical device by means of which the effective distance of the deflecting layer actually may be measured.

"In the pioneer work of short-wave length transmission," says a Navy Department statement, "it was noted that signals could be picked up at distances of 40 or 50 miles, after which they disappeared. They were again picked up at points hundreds of miles distant. The intervening, or 'dead,' space became known as the 'skip distance.'

"In seeking to account for this, a theory was developed at the Research Laboratory that there was a relation between the earth's magnetic field, the frequency of the waves used, skip distances, and the height of the Heaviside layer. This relation was worked out mathematically by means of data contributed by members of the American Radio Relay League and coworkers in foreign countries.

Two Radio Waves.

"The joint experiments with the Carnegie Institution approached the problem from a different angle, demonstrating definitely the existence of two waves, one of which arrived by way of the earth and the other by way of the layer. From these experiments estimates of effective height of the layer were made, these estimates being essentially in agreement with the estimates derived from observations on the skip distance. Other peculiarities of the layer have been investigated by the Carnegie Institution in collaboration with the Radio Corporation of America and the Westinghouse Manufacturing Co."

Secretary Wilbur also announced that the Naval Research Laboratory is in communication with virtually every country in the world, using short wave lengths and high frequencies. Understanding of the principles involved has progressed to the point where it can be stated definitely that a high frequency transmitting station, built at a cost of $60,000, will give better service and longer range than the present high-power stations costing $2,000,000 each, while the cost of operation will be correspondingly reduced.

$2 BILL HELPS TO CONVICT MAN OF $7600 ROBBERY

Torn Certificate Was Found on Floyd Miller, 21, After Holdup of Bank Messenger.

A $2 bill and the incriminating testimony of a confessed robber were an unlucky combination for Floyd Miller, 21, yesterday.

After considering the combination for 15 minutes, a jury in Circuit Judge Hamilton's Court convicted Miller of participation in the $7600 robbery of a negro messenger for the State Bank of Wellston, Feb. 10, and sentenced him to eight years in the State Penitentiary.

Miller, John Ryan, Edward O'Brien and William O'Brien were indicted for the robbery. Miller was the first to be tried, and Ryan turned State's witness against him, for which he probably will be shown leniency. William O'Brien, is yet to be tried. Edward O'Brien, leader of the robber gang, was shot to death under mysterious circumstances in St. Louis County last April.

Slugged Messenger.

A few hours after the robbers had invaded a Hodiamont street car at Goodfellow avenue, slugged Joseph Williams, the bank messenger, and escaped with a valise containing $7600, the O'Briens, who were not related, were arrested in an apartment at 722 Clara avenue, and $3600 of the loot was recovered. Ryan and Miller came to the apartment later, and were arrested.

Included in a roll of $125 found on Miller, was a $2 bill with a peculiar zig-zag rent, the only one of its denomination. John B. Ghio, cashier of the Wellston Bank, testified the bill had been deposited at the bank by William Tiepelmann, grocer, at 5543 St. Louis avenue, and was included in the $7600 which the messenger was taking to a downtown bank when held up. Tiepelmann also identified the bill, and recalled that, as he presented it to Ghio, he had remarked, "I hope no bad luck comes to us on account of this two spot."

The bad luck superstition was carried a bit farther when Detective-Sergeant Jordan, who arrested Miller and took the currency from him, testified he had said to Miller, "Buddy, I hope this $2 bill doesn't bring you any bad luck." This remark was made before the bill had been identified by the banker and grocer.

State Springs Surprise.

Then the State sprung a surprise, and climaxed Miller's ill luck, by putting Ryan on the witness stand. Ryan testified the robbery was planned by the O'Briens, Miller and himself upon receipt of a "tip" from an unnamed person about the messenger's scheduled trip downtown with the money. Ryan said Edward O'Brien slugged the messenger, Miller cowed passengers on the street car with a revolver, and he, Ryan, took the valise, all three then escaping. They proceeded to the Clara avenue apartment, he said, where the three active robbers and William O'Brien each took $1700 of the loot, and the other $800 was set aside to reward the "tipster."

When Miller took the witness stand, he was compelled to admit he had served a term at the Boonville Reformatory for robbery in St. Louis County. He was paroled before completing his five-year sentence.

The man who prosecuted him then was the man who defended him yesterday, Adam Henry Jones, former Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis County.

Miller admitted the holdup plans had been made known to him by the O'Briens, with whom he lived at the Clara avenue address, but he asserted he had declined to participate in the holdup. At the time of the crime, he said, he was downtown shopping, and bought an overcoat and a suit. He maintained the torn $2 bill was part of his winnings from a dice game.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 20.—Armando Andre y Alvarado, 43-year-old publisher of the newspaper El Dia and former Havana port police Captain, was shot by two men as he left his automobile in front of his home on Concordia street early this morning and died a short time later at a local hospital.

The assailants, said to be a negro and a white man, both opened fire with revolvers without warning, six bullets striking the publisher, and escaped in an automobile which was without license plates. Senor Andre's chauffeur told the police.

El Dia, an opposition paper, was founded by Andre when he left the port police post last May.

At the Interior Department no statement could be obtained in connection with the confiscation of yesterday afternoon's editions of El Dia and El Heraldo. Police collecting the papers on the streets said they were acting on orders from the Interior Department. Both papers lately have bitterly attacked the Government.

OFFICE BUILDING MANAGERS HEARD BY ZONING BODY

Denial Made That Such Structures Are the Chief Cause of Traffic Congestion Downtown.

DEPARTMENT STORES ARE PLACED FIRST

Round Figure Estimates Fix Persons Attracted Daily at 550,000 and 200,000, Respectively.

Downtown office building managers, conferring with the Zoning Commission at the Melbourne Hotel last night, denied that office buildings are the chief causes of traffic congestion. Department stores, they said, draw many more persons into the downtown district than the office buildings do.

The proposed height limit of 150 feet on downtown office buildings, with additional height allowances for setback construction and for interior court space, was the subject of discussion. The office building men are arguing that the limit to be fixed in the proposed zoning ordinance should be not less than 265 feet.

Traffic congestion, air and light supply, and financial return of office buildings of different heights, were topics of discussion at the two-hour session, attended by 25 coatless men.

Comparative Estimates Presented.

To show that tall office buildings are not the greatest factor in traffic congestion, L. O. Honig, assistant manager of the Boatmen's Bank Building, offered a round-figure estimate that 550,000 persons a day go into and out of the four largest St. Louis department stores, including the 10,200 employes of those stores.

In comparison with this, he said, the total number of elevator passengers in 27 downtown office buildings daily is 200,936, and the daily population of the 27 buildings averages a total of 30,000. The 27 buildings include all the larger ones downtown except the Central National Bank and Fullerton buildings, for which figures were not obtained.

President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service asked for figures on the "peak" crowds in office buildings, at coming-to-work, lunch-hour and going-home time. This brought a statement from Claude B. Ricketts, manager of the Railway Exchange Building, as to the methods used to scale down the "peak" of elevator traffic in that building. The "stagger" system of timing lunch periods in the railroad offices on different floors of the building, so as to keep all the offices from emptying into the corridors at once, was described. In the morning, he said the "peak" is reached several times, with the arrival of different grades of workers, and the bosses coming last of all.

Slap at City Clerks.

Costs of office building construction and management were outlined by Ricketts and others, who said that construction costs were 2½ times what they were when some of the present office buildings were built, and told of the increased wage scale, with the lowest paid help, the charwoman, getting $45 to $60 a month.

To make their argument more definite, the building men proceeded, then and there, to erect imaginary office buildings on three downtown corners. Cost of construction and rental returns were computed for the imaginary structures, and the result was declared to show that new buildings would lose money if the law should restrict them to a height of 12 stories, 150 feet.

Six Per Cent Return Figured.

In making these computations, the building managers figured in a 6 per cent return on the investment as part of the "cost." A. R. Langsdorf of the Zoning Commission, chairman of the meeting, called attention to the fact that the losses which they figured were not absolute losses, but partial offsets of the 6 per cent return.

One of the imaginary structures was placed on the site of the Boatmen's Bank Building, and it was figured that, with a permitted height of 265 feet, the limit which the building men are advocating, the annual "profit" would be 2½ per cent. Here, Chairman Langsdorf brought out the fact that the 2½ per cent was in addition to the 6 per cent return already figured in.

Mythical edifices were also erected on the sites of the Frisco Building, Ninth and Olive streets, and the Globe-Democrat Building, Sixth and Pine streets. In the case of the Olive street building, as in the building on the Boatmen's Bank site, the setback plan was used to increase the height, but the Pine street lot was declared too small for such methods, and, a solid structure was figured for that site.

Construction Cost Estimate.

For all the buildings, cost of construction was figured at $5 a

In making these computations, the building managers figured in a 6 per cent return on the investment as part of the "cost." A. B. Langsdorf of the Zoning Commission, chairman of the meeting, called attention to the fact that the losses which they figured were not absolute losses, but partial offsets of the 6 per cent return.

One of the imaginary structures was placed on the site of the Boatmen's Bank Building, and it was figured that, with a permitted height of 265 feet, the limit which the building men are advocating, the annual "profit" would be 2½ per cent. Here, Chairman Langsdorf brought out the fact that the 6% per cent was in addition to the 6 per cent return already figured.

Mythical edifices were also erected on the sites of the Frisco Building, Ninth and Olive streets, and the Globe-Democrat Building, Sixth and Pine streets. In the case of the Olive street building, as in the building on the Boatmen's Bank site, the setback plan was used to increase the height, but the Pine street lot was declared too small for such methods, and a solid structure was figured for that site.

Construction Cost Estimate.

For all the buildings, cost of construction was figured at 85 cents a cubic foot, and rentals for the Olive street building were figured at $2.75 a square foot. On this basis, G. M. Turley of Isaac T. Cook & Co. said, the Olive street building, if restricted to 12 or even 13 stories, would show figuring on a 6 per cent return, a loss of $45,000 a year. Increased to 23 stories, it would yield a profit of $20,000.

For the Pine street building, figuring rentals at $2.50 a square foot, there would be a loss under the restrictions of the proposed law, but a profit under a 265-foot allowance.

The chairman did not accept the building men's estimate of 85 cents a cubic foot for cost of construction. He said that, in a building more than 13 stories high, the upper floors would cost much more than 85 cents a cubic foot. At the same time, he said, the added upper floors would require more elevator and lobby room, and this would cut down the rentable space on lower floors, especially the profitable first-floor space.

Argument Against Tall Buildings.

In the argument on this subject, several of the building men took part, and a visitor, Saxil Tuxen, member of the City Plan Commission of Melbourne, Australia, made a talk in which he supported the chairman's position, and argued that very tall buildings were both undesirable, as causing congestion, and were unprofitable. In Melbourne, a city of 900,000, Tuxen said, the main streets are 99 feet wide, and the height limit is 132 feet, which many persons there consider too great an allowance.

Tuxen told of the Australian requirements for lighting of buildings, saying that a one-third angle of light is required, so that a building reaching the 132-foot limit must have a light court 44 feet wide. Ricketts, in replying, told of the light court of the 250-foot Railway Exchange Building, covering a solid block, which measures 125 by 170 feet.

Ricketts and others of the building men said they were not asking the city to protect them from losing money by making their structures too high. The building men can do their own figuring, and will do it on a conservative basis, they said. Ricketts said that the only building likely to go too high was what he termed a "monumental" building, built primarily to bear the name of some man or some business. Such buildings, he said, are sometimes run to unreasonable and unprofitable heights, and in order to rent their upper floors, the owners cut prices, a bad thing for the building business.

150-Foot Limit Tentative.

Chairman Langsdorf said that the proposed 150-foot limit had been fixed only tentatively, and that the commission would consider the arguments presented against it. He called attention to the fact that, when space is given to an interior court, the height may be greater than 150 feet, as the allowance is for the cubical content of a solid 150-foot building.

The Zoning Commission will hold a similar conference, next Wednesday night, with representatives of the Real Estate Exchange. Delmar boulevard property owners may be heard later on the question of height. A number of interests on Delmar have objected to the proposed height limit of 85 feet, with no set-back allowance, which would apply to that street under the proposed ordinance. The Delmar property owners hold that they should be permitted to erect buildings as high as those anywhere in the city.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 20.—The Calumet Milling Co.'s elevator, in Southeast Minneapolis, and its contents of 100,000 bushels of grain was destroyed by fire last night. The loss is estimated at $250,000.

The principal of the Italian debt, negotiations for settlement of which also have been instituted, is $1,647,869,197, and the accrued interest, $490,674,654, making a total of $2,138,543,852.

The original sum of Great Britain's war indebtedness to the United States was $4,600,000,000. British payments have continued regularly under the funding plan, and this principal amount has been reduced to $4,554,000,000, as of May 16, 1925, with interest payments in addition amounting to $275,310,000.

The account against Russia at present totals $255,147,692, of which $192,601,297 is the principal of loans made during the war and $62,546,394 accrued interest.

Belgian Cabinet to Decide When Agreement Will Be Ratified.

By the Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 20.—The details of the agreement, reached at Washington for the funding of Belgium's debt to the United States have been laid before King Albert at the royal summer residence at Laeken, by Finance Minister Janssen.

The question of whether Parliament shall be carried into a special session to ratify the agreement will be decided by the Cabinet on the return of the Belgian delegation from the United States.

One opinion favors refraining from acting to ratify until the United States Congress has approved the agreement.

Foreign Minister Vandervelde today cabled the Belgian delegation in Washington, congratulating the members on the debt settlement, which the entire Cabinet considers satisfactory.

Disappointment is expressed in the comments of most of today's Brussels newspapers on the outcome of the Belgian debt funding negotiations in Washington.

The Nation Belge thinks the United States "might have spared Belgium the cruel irony of mentioning her heavy moral obligation to Belgium."

The Gazette says: "America has decided not to skin us alive," and adds, "we owe them no gratitude—nothing but dollars."

4 RETURNED TO REFORMATORY UNDER REVOKED PAROLES

Thomas Cleary, George Gerhardt, Charles Martin and T. Butler to Complete Sentences.

Four St. Louis young men, whose paroles from sentence in the Boonville Reformatory have been revoked, were returned to that institution in custody of Detective Lieutenant Heggeman and Major Krause of the reformatory today.

The number included Thomas Cleary, who in 1919 received a three-year term and was paroled in 1920, with two years to serve. Recently, the Attorney-general gave an opinion to the authorities at the reformatory that Cleary was still subject to serve the unfulfilled sentence.

The others were Charles Martin, 20 years old, 2216 North Eleventh street, sentenced to four years in 1922, after confessing a series of burglaries, and paroled the following year; Thomas Butler, 20 years old, 2003 North Thirteenth street, sentenced to two years in 1924 for burglary and paroled six months later, and George Gerhardt, 29 years old, 3927 Shenandoah avenue, sentenced to five years for robbery in 1921 and paroled eleven months later. They were arrested within the last few days, at the request of the Boonville authorities, upon reports that they were associating with police characters in violation of their paroles.

POLICE TAKE MAN FROM GAS-FILLED APARTMENT

Police broke into the gas-filled apartment of Fred C. Berryman at 5326A South Compton avenue, yesterday, and found him lying on the bed, nearly asphyxiated. A note to his wife, Madeline, addressed to 5317 Minnesota avenue, said: "Dear Madeline—I can do no more than offer my life as proof of my love for you and baby." Scattered about the floor were the pages of a letter from Mrs. Berryman, refusing a reconciliation.

Before he had turned on the gas, Berryman had locked all the windows and doors, and placed a loaded revolver beneath the bed. Oscar Porcely, a police clerk at the Wyoming street station, living in the apartment below Berryman, noticed the odor of gas, and traced it to the floor above. He called the police, who broke down the door, and took the unconscious man to the city hospital, where physicians said he would probably recover.

The Berrymans have been married 13 months, and have one child—a five-months' old daughter. Today, at the hospital, he expressed the hope that he might live, to work for his little girl, and try to regain his wife's affection.

A dog owned by the family went to Mrs. Butts' rescue and attacked the cat. The son then appeared to rescue the dog and was also attacked by the cat. Mother and son are under the care of a physician.

SUBSTITUTE IN COURT FOR FRIEND ARRESTED

M. J. Walsh Charged With Forgery When He Signs Bond as Martin Brennan.

Michael J. Walsh, who has confessed substituting himself for a friend in court yesterday, seeking reinstatement of a forfeited criminal bond, was ready to plead guilty to his friend's charge and pay a $100 fine for auld lang syne. He was greatly surprised when the State began talking about a year in the workhouse instead, and even more surprised when he and his friend's bondsman were arrested under forgery warrants in the case. Conviction of the forgery charge carries a minimum punishment of 10 years in the penitentiary.

Mike Cutter, professional bondsman and a grocer at 2000 Division street, is the other man charged with forgery, as he provided the new bond signed by Walsh in the name of his friend, Martin Brennan. The charge against Brennan is one of carrying a concealed weapon, resulting from his arrest after an alleged attempted robbery, last December. Brennan has been ordered arrested at Decatur, Ill., by the Circuit Attorney's office, which is considering whether he can be charged with forgery as an accessory before the fact. This is the basis of the charge against Cutter.

Brennan's $1000 bond, signed by Cutter, was forfeited in his absence, March 23, but recently Cutter negotiated for a $100 fine for Brennan if he surrendered and pleaded guilty. This was agreed to. Walsh answered for Brennan before Circuit Judge Hamilton yesterday. The State announced that it had learned Brennan had served a prison term for grand larceny, so it would demand a year in the workhouse for him in this case. That was when Walsh's jaw dropped and he began to realize the penalties of friendship.

The case was continued, the bond forfeiture set aside and the new $1000 bond provided. Acting Circuit Attorney Bowcock, becoming suspicious, sent Walsh before Berrillon Superintendent Shea, who declared promptly that it was not Brennan.

Walsh confessed his duplicity, saying he got nothing for it, but only wanted to do a favor for Brennan, who told him of his difficulty, in Decatur five weeks ago. He met Cutter yesterday, he said, and was told to answer for Brennan. Walsh said he was 38 years old and resided at 2218 Dickson street. Cutter surrendered under the forgery charge and provided a $10,000 bond for himself. He asserted he did not know Walsh or Brennan, but that Brennan telephoned recently he would be in court.

DAVID L. REMLEY JR. AND YOUNG WIFE RECONCILED

The suit for divorce brought by David L. Remsey Jr., 18-year-old son of a wealthy grocer, against his bride of eigh months, who was Miss Effie Walz, 17, was dismissed at Clayton today by his attorney who announced they had become reconciled and were living in their home on Spring avenue, near the Olive street road.

Remley filed the divorce suit July 18. The romance had its inception in the Clayton High School, where both were students. Parents consented to the marriage, and Remley's father gave him a start in business, establishing the Mt. Olive Motor Co. on the Olive stret road, wit hthe son in charge. In his petition young Remley recited when he came home in working clothes, grimy with toil, his wife made embarrassing remarks to him, nagged him because he worked 13 hours a day and blamed him for the hardships of his limited income.

KILLED WHILE ROPING A STEER

Cowboy's Neck Broken When He Fell With Horse at Rodeo.

By the Associated Press.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 20.—Roy Kivet, 24 years old, cowboy and adopted son of Charles B. Irwin, rancher of Cheyenne, Wyo., late yesterday was killed instantly when a horse he was riding in a steer-roping contest in a rodeo here, fell with him. The rider suffered a broken neck and fractured skull when crushed beneath his mount.

The accident occurred on almost the exact spot and almost a year to the day that Kivet shot and killed Harry Bowles in a rodeo here last year. Kivet was acquitted of murder on a plea of self-defense. He also was the second son of Irwin to die while roping a steer. Kivet was born in Joplin, Mo., and was the son of Mrs. P. H. Dunn, who lives in Kansas City.

CHASE OF FUGITIVES DIRECTED FROM AIR

Six Escaped Convicts From California Penitentiary Captured.

By the Associated Press.

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., Aug. 20.—A San Quentin prison employe is dead and six convicts are faced with the prospect of standing trial for murder as the result of an escape by the prisoners from a water front gang in a tugboat yesterday under the fire of machine guns. The six were captured after a spectacular chase in which police boats, posses and an airplane participated.

B. O. Miller, civilian shipping clerk of the prison, died at the Cottage Hospital at Richmond early today. During the break he was beaten with bricks which the prisoners were loading on a barge and was then taken on the tug commandeered by the convicts, presumably as a shield against machine-gun fire from the tower stations of the prison.

The guard in charge of the gang, George Grayson, is reported near death, having suffered a fractured skull at the hands of the six men who hammered him with bricks and stones.

As soon as the tug put out from land the police at San Francisco, Oakland and other points were notified. Lieut. W. R. Sweeley, piloting an airplane from Crisay Field, circled over the bay, caught sight of the craft bearing the fugitives and directed the pursuit from the air.

After a chase across the bay, the prisoners' boat was trapped in a shrimp swamp at Malate Point, on the Contra Costa County shore, where posses captured them.

BRANDS INITIALS ON RIVAL'S FACE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Enraged at the attentions Walter Johnson, 25, paid to Mrs. Rose Feleci, 19, her husband, Victor, branded his initials, "V. F." on Johnson's cheek with a wire heated over a gas flame as the victim lay, tied hand and foot before him.

Policemen heard the story when Johnson, his face seared with the three-inch letters, stumbled into a police station. They sent for Mrs. Feleci, who had witnessed the branding, and questioned her. Feleci could not be found.

The wife and Johnson said Feleci had mistreated her and she had once left him, but later returned and obtained a divorce. Letters she wrote to Johnson were found by another woman, who, moved by jealousy, sent them to the husband.

Under the pretense of giving him a drink of wine, Feleci brought Johnson home. Threatening him with a revolver, he compelled the wife to turn his face while he applied the heated wire.

"I'VE GOT SOME FINE BEER," BARTENDER TELLS OFFICERS

50 Raiders From Edwardsville, Who Find Still Deserted, Return With Two Bootleggers.

State's Attorney Jesse R. Brown, Sheriff Edward Deimling and a posse of deputies from Edwardsville went to Horseshoe Lake yesterday to raid a still. They found the equipment, but apparently its use had been discontinued some time before and the place abandoned.

Returning they stopped at Eagle Park for some soda.

"Haven't got any soda," said George Herwig, the bartender, who did not recognize the officers, "but I've got some fine beer, and there's another load just coming in."

He indicated John Gray, of Venice, who was just driving up with a machine laden with home brew.

So the officers did not return to the county seat empty handed, Herwig and Gray unwillingly being of the party.

—I was very sick and my mother did not know whether I was going to live or die, so she walked the floor with me in her arms worrying about whether I was going to die. Finally she knelt down and prayed to God, that if I was going to grow up to be a good boy, let me live, but if I was going to grow up to be a trouble and worry to her, take me now while I was young and innocent. And now, look at me, a convict with a long record of crimes behind me.

His little story of how his career of crime started is worth repeating for the sake of children who should be made to realize how a crime career may be begun by starting with small ones.

When a boy of 12 he went with a crowd of other boys into a store in a small town—a general merchandise store—having but a dime in his hand and knowing that was not enough to treat the crowd to candy. He wrapped a rock in his handkerchief, carrying it into the store with him and asked the woman in charge for a dime's worth of salt, which he knew was at the back of the store. When she went to get his order he quickly broke the glass on the candy counter and grabbing a good supply of candy, ran out to the street.

Unfortunately for him, he ran into a policeman before he had gotten far, who talked to him seriously and let him go. From that he got the idea it was rather a cute trick and committing crimes was not so bad if one was not to be punished for it.

All of these men spoke in a hopeless manner, most especially Elsworth Kelly, who remarked that none of them cared now whether they were alive or dead.

"Why should we care to live? The whole world is against us. I always have been a misfit, anyway, all my life."

I asked why he should feel that way, but received no reply. I then remonstrated, "Perhaps unhappy home conditions?" and he said, "Yes."

He spoke of the hopelessness of their future and I told him he was too young a man to speak in that way, that if he got a chance he ought to try to live the right kind of a life and make his future worth while. He said, "Yes, I will."

Utter Hopelessness.

The most striking feature of this convict was his utter hopelessness of his position and that his life was not worth trying to save. The leader of the gang, Tom Murray, was more cheerful, joking and laughing all day long, telling stories to the little girl while on guard duty in the kitchen, answering her question in his own way. One of these was: "How did you get those dimples in your face?"

He turned to me and said, "How shall I answer her?" "Oh, I'll tell you. Just keep smiling all the time and you will get dimples in your face."

Another time she told him he looked like Santa Claus when he had his face lathered for shaving. Then he asked her what Santa Claus brought her last Christmas and she said: "Do you know he forgot me last Christmas? But I'll bet he won't forget next time. I'm going to be just as good as I can be from now on, then I'll bet he'll bring me some presents."

I speak now only of the end of the day, a long day, surely, and naturally the hardest. We were apprehensive at all times. During the day we would have been in peril if not so intent to carry on in the way we thought possible to protect our children. The men were gentlemanly in their attitude to us and gave us no cause for alarm, but we were closely watched for any wrong move. When making preparations to leave, my husband asked just what their plans were, and Murray said, "Well, I'll tell you. We plan to take your car and your son, Leslie, and this other fellow, who is a mechanic, and hold them for two and a half hours, if you give us that much time. Wait until they get back, they will be returned safely."

My husband asked them not to take Leslie, saying: "Why he is just a kid." However, Murray said it would make it safer for them if they had our son, as they could be more than sure that we would keep our word with them.

Then was the hardest part of the day, realizing that my boy would be placed in such a position. I put my arms around him and just felt that I couldn't let them take him.

Each one of the convicts in turn said very earnestly: "Mrs. Newman, I give my word of honor, if that's worth anything to you, that we will return your son safely if you will do as we say and not report us until he gets back." They insisted on shaking hands with my husband and me to assure us they meant what they said.

One of them, Willos, added, "Why, Mrs. Newman, if we are shot at, I will place myself in front of your son to protect him if necessary."

I told him we were afraid not of what they might do, but what might happen if the men were recognized on the way.

A little after the time alloted them, however, we were relieved of our anxieties by hearing the hum of a motor and the welcome sound of our boy's voice returned safe and sound.

30-DAYS' TRAINING WORKS BIG CHANGE IN CITIZEN TROOPS

Col. Stone, Commandant, Praises 1000 Members of Camp for Progress They Have Made.

"But for the fact that I witnessed your arrival at Jefferson Barracks a month ago I would not believe that you boys have had less than 30 days military training in your lives," declared Col. David L. Stone, commandant of Jefferson Barracks, in an address to the 1000 members of the Citizens' Military Training Camp, who closed their training program yesterday with a formal review.

It was not difficult to echo Col. Stone's declaration. The soldierly bearing and military precision of the ranks passing the reviewing stand were such as to convince the spectator that he was witnessing a parade of the Sixth Infantry regulars, rather than maneuvers by a group of youths who had donned a soldier's uniform for the first time a month ago.

Citizenship Training.

"While you have shown us that we have been successful in training you in military matters, this camp has still a greater purpose," Col. Stone said. "We have tried to make it a training camp in citizenship as well as in things military. I feel assured, however, that you will prove just as excellent citizens as you have proven military students. Go to your homes and be an example for your fellow townsmen. Show them that you know and love your country, and that your greatest desire is for the furtherance of America. Don't be a slacker in anything. Go to the polls when you have reached your majority and vote for the right man that your country may always be wisely directed."

Col. Stone's address and the review of the students were preceded by the awarding of prizes for the various forms of competition during the encampment.

Prominent among the prize winners was Arthur Henry Darter of Marion, Ill. Three times this straight-shouldered Williamson County youth stepped from the ranks and received medals from the hand of Col. A. T. Perkins of the Reserve Corps.

Darter, who is 17 years old, proved the best student of the 35 attending camp from Williamson County. He was the best rifle shot in the Williamson County group and also in his company, and missed by one shot, tying Malcolm A. Harbst of Highland, Ill., for the marksmanship honors of the camp.

Other Awards Made.

Other awards included a blue ribbon to H Company, the unit making the highest efficiency record of the eight companies in camp; a cup to Malcolm A. Herbst, of Highland, Ill., for rifleman honors; and a cup to Harry E. Reiss, Duquoin, Ill., for the highest aggregate score with the machine gun. The best marksmen and the best students in each company also received awards, as did the winners in athletic events.

The Citizens' Military Training Camp opened at Jefferson Barracks on July 22 with an enrollment of 1000 youths from Missouri, Illinois and Arkansas. Only youths between the ages of 17 and 22 years, having no previous military training, were eligible. The training course, which was strictly primary, included calesthenics, infantry drill, citizenship, (including history), compulsory athletics, and rifle and machine gun firing. To be eligible for a reserve commission in the United States Army the graduates of the camp just closed must make passing grades in three advanced camps, to be held in succeeding years.

Of the 1100 youths reported last month approximately 15 were forced to return home because of illness of relatives or other causes. The citizen-soldiers today are returning in equipment and taking the final physical examination. Camp will be struck early, tomorrow after all of the students back in "service" and on the way to their homes by noon. The students receive transportation to and from their homes at the rate of five cents per mile.

LEMON JUICE BEST TO WHITEN SKIN

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands. It cannot irritate, and stage beauties use it to bring a clear, youthful skin and rosy complexion; also as a freckle, sun and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. Cannot be bought ready to use, but it acts best immediately it is prepared.

30-DAYS' TRAINING WORKS BIG CHANGE IN CITIZEN TROOPS

Col. Stone, Commandant, Praises 1000 Members of Camp for Progress They Have Made.

"But for the fact that I witnessed your arrival at Jefferson Barracks a month ago I would not believe that you boys have had less than 30 days military training in your lives," declared Col. David L. Stone, commandant of Jefferson Barracks, in an address to the 1000 members of the Citizens' Military Training Camp, who closed their training program yesterday with a formal review.

It was not difficult to echo Col. Stone's declaration. The soldierly bearing and military precision of the ranks passing the reviewing stand were such as to convince the spectator that he was witnessing a parade of the Sixth Infantry regulars, rather than maneuvers by a group of youths who had donned a soldier's uniform for the first time a month ago.

Citizenship Training.

"While you have shown us that we have been successful in training you in military matters, this camp has still a greater purpose," Col. Stone said. "We have tried to make it a training camp in citizenship as well as in things military. I feel assured, however, that you will prove just as excellent citizens as you have proven military students. Go to your homes and be an example for your fellow townsmen. Show them that you know and love your country, and that your greatest desire is for the furtherance of America. Don't be a slacker in anything. Go to the polls when you have reached your majority and vote for the right man that your country may always be wisely directed."

Col. Stone's address and the review of the students were preceded by the awarding of prizes for the various forms of competition during the encampment.

Prominent among the prize winners was Arthur Henry Darter of Marion, Ill. Three times this straight-shouldered Williamson County youth stepped from the ranks and received medals from the hand of Col. A. T. Perkins of the Reserve Corps.

Darter, who is 17 years old, proved the best student of the 35 attending camp from Williamson County. He was the best rifle shot in the Williamson County group and also in his company, and missed by one shot, tying Malcolm A. Harbst of Highland, Ill., for the marksmanship honors of the camp.

Other Awards Made.

Other awards included a blue ribbon to H Company, the unit making the highest efficiency record of the eight companies in camp; a cup to Malcolm A. Herbst, of Highland, Ill., for rifleman honors; and a cup to Harry E. Reiss, Duquoin, Ill., for the highest aggregate score with the machine gun. The best marksmen and the best students in each company also received awards, as did the winners in athletic events.

ACCOUNTANT TELLS POLICE HE FORGED THREE CHECKS

Ralph C. Schipp Sent to City Hospital After Admission—Said He Was on Spree.

Ralph C. Schipp, an accountant, went to Police Headquarters yesterday and announced he had forged three checks for $15 each at the start of a protracted spree. No complaint had been made, but he was sent to City Hospital, where he repeated his admission to reporters today.

Schipp, who is 34 years old and resides at 3934 Washington boulevard, has been employed by a company which audits merchants' books. He regularly audited the books of Ike Kugman's dry goods store, 920 South Vandeventer avenue, hence knew Kugman's signature, he said, and was thereby enabled to sign Kugman's name on the checks, which he cashed at a saloon near the store.

"Yesterday was the first day I was rational after that," said Schipp. "I can't remember just when I did that. I've been drinking off and on for years. Yesterday I concluded to try to make amends."

GERMAN CABINET WORRIED OVER HIGH LIVING COST

Crops Are Good, but Prices Are Almost Double Those of 1913.

By Radio to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News. Copyright, 1925.

BERLIN, Aug. 20.—Living in Germany, particularly in Berlin, is becoming so high that the public, newspapers and the cabinet are worried.

Although crops are excellent, prices of fruit and vegetables continue to rise. The Government also has decided to allow rents in the near future to return to pre-war figures. This means, when all is calculated, that the cost of living for all but the very poor is more than twice what it was in 1913.

There exists here a so-called usury law which enables the Government to fix prices on the basis of "a fair profit," but this law is rarely applied and probably cannot be, since the price depends on supply and demand and all that the traffic will bear is the normal business maximum.

Negroes Urged to Buy Land.

TULSA, Ok., Aug. 20.—Great progress has been made by the negro in the United States in the last few years, Dr. Robert R. Moton, president of the National Negro Business League and principal of Tuskegee Institute in Alabama, said last night in an address before the league. He urged negroes to buy land, "especially at this time when the South is undergoing an agricultural reorganization."

HOUSES WRECKED BY FALLING TREES IN STORM

By the Associated Press.

PEORIA, Ill., Aug. 20.—A windstorm that swept Peoria and vicinity yesterday afternoon unroofed several houses. Pekin, Ill., 10 miles from Peoria, was hardest hit.

Peoria was only on the fringe of the storm and damage to this city was confined to wrecked trees, crippled telephone service and flooded sewers.

At Pekin a telephone pole was blown against a Peoria & Pekin Union passenger train, smashing out all of the windows on one side of a coach. Mrs. Harvey Roland and Neil Reardon, passengers, were injured by flying glass. Trees blown over the track of the road crippled service between Peoria and Pekin.

At Farmington, Ill., the home of Evan Reed was wrecked when three large trees were blown over on it; the home of Miss Kate Summers was cut in two by a large tree that fell and damage was done at the residence of Earl Butler when part of the house was crushed in by trees. No one was hurt. All the corn crop is reported leveled.

WOMAN, 72, DROPS SUIT AGAINST HER HUSBAND, 77

The separate maintenance suit of Mrs. Caroline S. Whitchurch, 72 years old, against Joseph C. Whitchurch, 77, of Lenzburg Township, filed last Saturday in the Circuit Court at Belleville, was dismissed yesterday. tI is said that a reconciliation was brought about by 10 grown children. The Whitchurches were married May 11, 1876.

Immediately after the dismissal of the suit, Whitchurch filed an agreement in the office of Recorder Welbert deeding to his wife half of a 150-acre farm and giving her half of his cash cavings and personal property, which amount to $9800. Attorneys in the case stated that the couple had been reunited.

MORGAN WANTS NAME PUT BACK ON EFFICIENCY LIST

Former Workhouse Warden Follows Action of Former Jailer in Seeking Reinstatement.

Speculation at city hall over who will be appointed Warden of the city workhouse, and who will be Jailer, increased today with the application of H. N. Morgan, former workhouse Warden, for reinstatement on the Efficiency Board's eligible list. Richard Hatton, former Jailer, applied for reinstatement on the list yesterday. Morgan and Hatton were removed June 1 by the new administration, seemingly because they had supported an opponent of Mayor Miller in the primary election.

As there are only two men on the eligible list for the workhouse job now, Frank J. Primavesi, a former warden there, and John M. McCully, former jailer, and as there must be three on this list before an appointment can be made, another examination will be necessary unless Morgan is reinstated. Elisha C. Freeze, acting warden, who is father-in-law of Robert Kratky, Mayor Miller's campaign manager, failed to pass the Efficiency Board examination for the eligible list.

E. E. BUTLER WILL SEEK HAWES' SEAT IN CONGRESS

Son-in-Law of Hank Weeke to Make Race for G. O. P. Nomination in Eleventh District.

Edward E. Butler of 2334 Hebert street, member of the Republican City Committee from the Eighteenth Ward, has announced that he intends to be a candidate for Congress in the Eleventh District next year. The district is now represented by Harry B. Hawes, a Democrat, who will not seek re-election, having entered the senatorial primary contest. Butler succeeded his father-in-law, "Hank" Weeke, on the City Committee seven years ago. He is 37 years old and is a lawyer.

Butler opposed Mayor Miller in the primary, but has supported him since. Mrs. Butler, formerly Miss Esther Weeke, was a delegate to the Republican National Convention in 1920.

Cullen Landis Plan to Wed Again.
By the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 20.—Two announcements affecting Cullen Landis, motion picture actor, were issued here yesterday. One, by his surgeon, was to the effect that an operation for appendicitis was performed, and was a success, and that an examination conducted at the same time disclosed Landis had not been internally injured in a recent automobile accident. The other announcement, by Landis himself, disclosed that he and Miss Loca Hearne, formerly of Lexington, Ky., are engaged, and will be married as soon as the present Mrs. Landis receives her final decree of divorce.

HEAVY TICKET SALE FOR ICE FUND SHOW

Orpheum Theater to Be Scene of Performance Arranged by David Russell.

A heavy advance ticket sale for the vaudeville show next Saturday evening at the Orpheum Theater is reported by David E. Russell, Municipal Theater director, who is managing the one-night performance for the benefit of the Post-Dispatch Free Ice for Babies' Milk Fund. Seats priced at $1 may be purchased at the Orpheum Theater box office or the Statler Hotel cigar stand.

This is the fifth year that the use of the Ninth street playhouse with all attaches has been given without charge for a complimentary opening to aid the babies' fund. ## Says Dangerous Varicose Veins Can Be Reduced at Home

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart, as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or bunches, the best advice that anyone in this world can give you is to ask your druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that even Piles are quickly absorbed. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Keiffer Drug Co. and Johnson Bros. Drug Co. sell lots of it.

98.3 DEGREES YESTERDAY THE HEAT RECORD HERE THIS YEAR

Wave for the Time at Least Is Broken, Weather Forecaster Hayes Says.

Yesterday's maximum temperature of 98.3 degrees at 2 p. m. established the heat record for the year, while today's may fall below the average for this time, according to Weather Forecaster Hayes, who says that although the temperature reading of 72 at 7 a. m. today is normal, that due to the clouded skies it may drop lower than the average. According to Hayes, the heat wave, for the time at least, is broken.

The zenith reached yesterday contrasts strongly in the mind of Henry Mindrup of Edwardsville, Ill., with the nadir of Aug. 18, 1863, when he was a boy of 15. At that time, he recalls, a killing frost turned the grain crop black, and farmers wore coats and mufflers while operating reapers in the fields. This was followed, he says, on Aug. 28 of that year by a frost so heavy that all vegetation and the foliage of trees were killed.

The St. Louis Weather Bureau has no record of this frost as their collection of data goes no further back than 1871. They have, however, the files of Dr. George Engelmann, a physician and scientist of St. Louis who kept statistics on the lowest daily readings from 1836 until shortly before 1871. According to Dr. Engelmann's files the coldest temperature in the month of August 1863 was on the 28th when it was 40. Hayes believes that this temperature would permit only a light frost, and then only under favorable conditions.

U. S. EXPEDITION NEW CENTERS OF IN OLD MAYA

Back in New Orleans Wit Tribe, Party Tells of P Idol Discoveri

By KENNETH W. BARR.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 20.—Bringing with them a pure descendant of the ancient Maya Indians, Frank Blom and Oliver Lafarge, comprising the first Tulane Middle-American Expedition, arrived here last night from a six months' exploration trip into Mexico and Guatemala. They reported one of the most astounding series of archeological discoveries ever made by a single expedition.

As the result of their explorations and collection of valuable data, the center of Central American research now comes to New Orleans.

Discovery of three huge centers of Maya culture, each a distinct cluster of ruined cities containing a tremendous quantity of monuments carved with dates and other important hieroglyphs; unearthing of a large tomb containing the bones of some mighty Maya ruler, on the walls of which sepulcher were found nine portraits in low relief, each more beautifully artistic than any Maya paintings previously discovered; proof that the old Maya empire area extended 100 miles further westward toward the Pacific coast of Mexico than has been hitherto known; discovery that the modern descendants of the Maya, despite the religious influence of thousands of Catholic missionaries in Mexico, still worship the pagan idols of their ancestors on far-off and obscure mountain tops; proof that the Maya race possessed skillful dentists and proof that the Maya Indian could compete with any race in the world in the art of making beautiful pottery —outlines the work accomplished by the explorers.

Return With Indian.

The Tulane men arrived last night from Puerto Barrios with Tata, a fullblooded Maya. He will remain in New Orleans for a fortnight, while attempts are made to induce him to divulge the secret customs and rites of his famous ancestors. His Spanish name is Lazaro Hernandez. He cannot speak English. Among his tribe he is respected for his so-called supernatural powers of curing ills. He might be termed, therefore, a "medicine man."

Blom is a young archeologist, who is doing his first work for Tulane. He formerly was a research scientist in the Maya field for the Mexican Government, and, more recently, with the Carnegie Institution of Washington. He is a native of Denmark. He is well known in the archeological field for his microscopic methods. He has made voluminous notes and painstaking drawings and sketches of all his discoveries which in themselves form one of the most valuable results of the expedition.

Lafarge is a recent graduate of Harvard. He is from New York City and Saunderstown, R. I. He is a grandson of John Lafarge, the late American artist. Lafarge, whose specialty is ethnology, has collected an enormous amount of interesting information on the languages, customs and history of the Maya. He will continue his studies with Tata during the next fortnight.

Only Weapon a Rifle.

It is doubtful if a previous archeological party ever suffered such body and nerve-wracking hardships as did the first Tulane expedition. Blom and Lafarge crossed faint Indian trails over which the feet of white man probably never had trod; they made their way through wild jungles while a squad of Indians cut a path for them with machetes; they climbed and descended almost perpendicular peaks; they visited tribes of Indians who still use the bow and arrow for weapons and whom they were warned not to visit, "if you want to get out alive." They escaped death by the narrowest of margins a dozen of times, though the only weapon they carried was a small .22-caliber special rifle for shooting birds and other provender.

Despite many obstacles, the Tulane explorers pushed steadily on, and at the end of their journey they tabulated the following:

1. Covered 1250 miles on horseback. 2. Traveled 2500 miles by water and 1000 miles by railroad; discovered, studied and brought back data on 24 new cities; discovered and photographed 73 new carved monuments; brought to light 32 new inscriptions, most of them dates; virtually proved that the Maya civilization comprised many subtribes; filled out many heretofore puzzling gaps in Maya history; cemented a close friendship between countless Indian villages and Central American Government officials and Tulane and New Orleans.

Everywhere the Tulane explorers met hospitable receptions. Guatemalan officials extended themselves to receive the party in each town visited.

U. S. EXPEDITION FINDS NEW CENTERS OF CULTURE IN OLD MAYAN EMPIRE

Only Weapon a Rifle.

It is doubtful if a previous archeological party ever suffered such body and nerve-wracking hardships as did the first Tulane expedition. Blom and Lafarge crossed faint Indian trails over which the feet of white man probably never had trod; they made their way through wild jungles while a squad of Indians cut a path for them with machetes; they climbed and descended almost perpendicular peaks; they visited tribes of Indians who still use the bow and arrow for weapons and whom they were warned not to visit, "if you want to get out alive." Everywhere the Tulane explorers met hospitable receptions. Guatemalan officials extended themselves to receive the party in each town visited.

Interesting Cities.

Blom believes that the discovery of three distinct clusters of old cities, each of them a distinct center of old Maya empire civilization, is of extreme value to the archeological world.

One center is at Yochiha,' near Encanto Ranch, State of Chiapas, Mexico. It was never before visited by archeologists, and by few men other than Indians. The city was built in one of the most picturesque spots found by the explorers.

Located on the banks of the Upper Tuliha, the pyramids lie near a point where the huge limestone wall blocks the river and forms a natural bridge. The river, a swift, deep, channeled stream, hurls itself at the obstruction, and then, roaring as if in futile rage because it must divert itself to pass, disappears in a strong whirlpool under the wall. At this strategic point the Mayas built one of their most interesting cities.

The explorers searched the ruins. They found first of all several plain uncarved monuments and some stone slabs more than 12 feet high in the plaza. None of the finds contained symbols.

On climbing to the top of the main pyramid, on which a temple once stood, they discovered that the roof of the 1500-year-old chamber had fallen in. The archeologists climbed over the ruins in the upper chamber to a lower room, where they found an exquisite collection of pottery. Some specimens were without a crack and others were slightly damaged.

Rare Pottery Specimens.

The pottery contained many paintings done in beautiful color combinations of orange and black. Collecting them, the explorers returned to search the upper chamber. After clearing away some of the debris, they found another group of pottery, but distinct in type from that in the lower chamber. In this room the clay vessels each were supported on three round feet. Each foot is hollow and contains a small pellet or "rattler." Those in the lower room stood on raised surfaces like the round rings on the bottoms of modern dinner plates.

"This find is one of the most important of our expedition because it proves for the first time that the Maya potters were equal in skill and artistry to any in the world," Blom said. "No one ever discovered such a stratification in Maya pottery art, hence we were never able to classify their age. This discovery gives us a means of solving the sequence in this branch of Maya art. The stratification must have occurred from the addition of another chamber to the pyramid by a subsequent generation of Mayas. The latter potters had reached a higher stage of development. It is possible that later we may find even further advanced examples of their skill in molding clay.

"The Maya pottery is extremely fine. It has a high polish and only rarely glazed. Their paintings are beautiful. One of the finds contained examples of typical Indian humor. To illustrate the art of succulent words the potter painted the picture of flowers falling from a man's mouth as he talked. On another vessel the art of poisonous speech was caricatured. Here snakes were falling from the mouth of the speaker."

Another extremely important discovery was made at the same ruins. While exploring the upper chamber Blom picked up a tooth in the loose dirt. Upon close examination he discovered that the tooth contained a black filling so ingeniously inlaid that after 1500 years it still formed a part of the tooth without the slightest indication of further decay or deterioration. It was filed into a point, a custom typical of the Maya, who considered it highly beautifying to have his and her front teeth resembling a saw.

Skilled Dentists.

"Here is absolute proof that the Maya, without the aid of modern instruments and drugs, was a skilled dentist 1500 years ago," Blom said. They must, however, have possessed some secret drug with which to deaden the pain and to make the inlay last so long without extracting the nerve. Modern scientists tell us it is necessary to extract the nerve for such an operation, else the tooth will blacken and decay around the filling. The inlay is composed of pyrite.

The explorers found that the "disappearing" river emerged through a subterranean cave on the other side of the natural bridge. A day's ride brought them to a second series of pyramids and ruins near another natural bridge over the river and the resultant whirlpool. But the city had been built slightly further away from the bridge than in the former case.

As the ruins proved comparatively unimportant, little time was spent studying them. The vegetation and tropical forest, however, were magnificient with their lagoons, their vines wreathing in wild profusion and their indescribably beautiful melange of garlands and sweet-scented herbs. Again the river emerged suddenly from beneath the natural bridge, this time into a wide lagoon. The water left the lagoon to fall about 300 feet below the bridge onto a large boulder, dashing a fine, wide spray like a huge fountain over the overhanging vegetation.

"There is no doubt in my mind," Blom said, in summing up his description of this discovery, "that the old Mayas built their cities near the freaks of Nature for a purpose. They used the wall over the river for a bridge and for the site of their sacrificial offerings. One can only speculate as to how many victims were offered up to the evil gods in that horrible whirlpool. We have found many indications of the Maya's tendency to make human sacrifices by drowning."

Leaving Yochiha, the Tulane party worked its way through the country of the Bachajon Indians to the Ocosingo Valley, where they discovered one of the largest centers of Mayan culture ever brought to light—not even excepting the famous ruins at Copan, Honduras. Five new cities were discovered in ruins. They are termed by the Indians—Chakalchib, Santa Theresa, Cololte, San Antonio and Kanpomtic. Tonina, a ruin visited by the Frenchman, Dupaix, in 1808, by John Lloyd Stevens, famous American diplomat, traveler and writer in 1840, and 1900 by the German, Seler, also was visited, and a number of new monuments and inscriptions discovered. Maya archeologists all have referred to the Valley, but heretofore no one even suspected its true significance as a part of Maya culture and as a source of new and astounding material.

At Ocosingo Lafarge saw a stone in the pavement. It proved to be a fragment of a Maya altar, containing 150 hieroglyphs. The party then decided to remain in the valley for several weeks.

Monuments Found.

Within a day they had located nine different monuments in different parts of the town, all being used by the natives for various Masonic purposes. It appeared that the inhabitants had spent most of their time dragging the heavy

1000 TREATIES FILED IN LEAGUE ARCHIVES

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

GENEVA, Aug. 20.—The amazingly large amount of work carried on by the League of Nations is revealed by the preliminary report of the League Council which will be submitted at the coming assembly.

The document, which does not include the report of the traffic in arms conference, the thirty-fourth and thirty-fifth sessions of the Council, the Financial Committee, Mandates Commission, the Slavery Committee, The Opium Advisory Committee, and the Committee on Intellectual Co-operation, covers more than 100 pages, relating actions taken on resolutions of the last assembly.

U. S. a Party to Five.

One of the most interesting features is treaty registrations. It shows altogether nearly a thousand treaties recorded in the league's archives: 251 were registered in the year ending last May, of which 26 were between the registering nations and the United States. Of 18 arbitration conventions, the United States was a party to five. Fifty-nine treaties referred to commerce and navigation; 24 were on economic and financial measures; and there were five regarding the liquor traffic, all of which were with the United States.

Humanitarian activities during the year were numerous, including the framing of the opium treaty, which the council submits without comment except to report that there have been no ratifications of either convention or protocol.

The report on the Greek refugee situation, rather disturbing, says: "The results as a whole are favorable, but health conditions are precarious." The council urges the world's charitable organizations again to take an active interest in the problem.

Work of An American.

Austrian and Hungarian reconstruction schemes also are discussed at length. The work of Jeremiah Smith, American, in Hungary, now half complete, "fulfills or surpasses most expectations," the report says, and "gives Hungary every reason to look forward with confidence to prosperous future." The Austrian situation is not so good and a special committee of international experts now is investigating the situation in Vienna.

Regarding the Geneva protocol, the council gives as a reason for not fulfilling the assembly's instructions Britain's rejection of the protocol and asks the coming assembly to reconsider the matter as well as future disarmament, private manufacture of arms, chemical warfare and other programs.

"The Rise and Fall of Jesse James"

By ROBERTUS LOVE

Jesse James' Body Is Disinterred After 20 Years and Reburied in Cemetery Beside His Wife—His Son Inspects the Bandit's Skeleton, and Is Shown the Hole in the Skull Made by Bob Ford's Bullet—Frank James Attends the Second Funeral.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

IN newspaper parlance a "pickup" is something a writer doesn't have to write. Just here the present writer finds a pick-up of chapter length. He wrote it himself, as the top signature indicates, as a piece of staff correspondence from Kearney, Missouri, and wired it to his newspaper on Sunday night, June 29, 1902, which date the reader is to bear in mind:

Jesse James had a wife;
She's a mourner all her life;
His children, they were brave.
Oh, the dirty little coward who shot Mr. Howard.
And they laid Jesse James in his grave.
—From the Old Song.

"And they laid Jesse James in his grave," for the second, and doubtless, the last time.

Not as a bandit, but as a brother in arms, as a soldier, as a guerrilla rough rider of the border warfare, as a fighter in the lost cause, a squad of Quantrill's men who rode and shot with the boy Jesse James in the last two years of the Civil War, bore his bones this Sunday afternoon to his new grave between those of his wife and his little half-brother.

"Not a sound was heard, not a funeral note," not a word was spoken at the grave during the 20 minutes required for carrying the coffin from the hearse, lowering it into the earth, shoveling in the clay and rounding off the mound.

Yes, there was one sound—just for a moment or two—the sobbing of Jesse's mother.

It was a burial in silence. A preacher, in white necktie, stood in the crowd, but merely as a spectator. There was no religious ceremony, either at the farmhouse or at the cemetery.

Frank James, who had stood uncovered at the head of the grave beside his aged mother, Mrs. Zerelda Samuel, and young Jesse James, his nephew, turned away as the last spadeful of sod was tossed upon the mound, saying:

"Well, boys, that's all we can do."

Then some flowers, brought from the yard of the old home, were planted on the mound by the comrades who bore the pall—and it was all over.

The Second Burial.

Disinterment of the remains this morning revealed the fact that somebody—either the great State of Missouri or an undertaker—had deceived the James family at the first burial 20 years ago. It was represented at that time that the coffin in which the body was shipped from St. Joseph was an enduring metallic casket, costing $500, and that the body had been embalmed. When the old coffin was lifted out of the grave it fell apart, and there was nothing inside but the skeleton in clothing.

This was indeed a dreary day for a disinterment and reburial. From early morning until noon the rain poured. As a consequence the crowd in attendance was small, many who had intended to come apparently believing that the burial would be postponed.

But there was no thought of postponement. Jesse James, the bandit's son, came out last night from Kansas City and found his uncle, Frank James, sick in bed, suffering from an attack of grip. There was a quiet talk between the two, and very early this morning young Jesse went to the home of John T. Samuel, here in town, a half-brother of the James boys, and the two men drove through the rain out to the Samuel farm, three and a half miles northeast of the little town. With them went Zach Laffoon, the old grave-digger of Kearney, and his nephew and assistant, Zip Pollock. A handsome new coffin, covered in black, with a silver plate bearing the name "Jesse James," was taken out with the little party.

The men reached the farmhouse shortly after 5 o'clock and the two gravediggers set to work at once, in the heavy rain, to open the grave. In a corner of the yard, toward the rear, under a gigantic coffee-bean tree, were the grave and the monument—a white marble shaft erected by the devoted mother of the dead man.

Laffoon and Pollock, with pick and spade, dug away the hard earth, whilst Jesse James and John Samuel stood by, partly sheltered from the rain by the spreading branches of the tree and watched the work.

A Deep Grave.

The ground was very hard and dry beneath the first few inches. Every spadeful of earth turned to mud before it struck the ground. It was a job of digging that brought out the perspiration on the men, already drenched. Old Zach Laffoon said it was about the hardest job of the kind he ever attempted.

Jesse James was buried deep. His mother, apprehensive lest the body might be stolen, had had the grave dug seven feet deep. Zip Pollock is a tall man, but when he stood in the bottom of the grave his head was a foot below the surface of the ground.

Nearly four hours' work was required to reach the coffin. All this time the rain beat upon the men and into the grave. At last the pick struck against metal, boring through rotten plank, and the rusted top of the coffin was revealed. The men dug aside the earth near the foot and passed a plank underneath, raising the coffin slightly. Then they lifted that end of the coffin—and a startling thing happened.

The top and sides of the metal casket came up, leaving the bottom to fall back into the grave, with the remains of Jesse James lying thereon. The men stepped down into the grave and lifted the bottom of the casket to the top. The foot came up first, and from the other end the skull rolled off into the grave. Zach Laffoon picked up the skull and replaced it.

As the coffin bottom was being turned around above ground, the skull again fell off and dropped to the bottom of the grave. Zip Pollard jumped down and picked it up, placing it once more upon the old coffin bottom. At this juncture John Samuel picked up the skull and began to turn it over in his hands, closely examining it.

"What are you looking for, John?" asked old Zach Laffoon.

There it was, a little more than an inch behind the left ear, and as large as a quarter. A small piece of the skull above it had broken in; otherwise the hole would have been round.

Young Jesse James looked curiously at his father's skull, glad to find the bullet hole and the gold-filled teeth, for those marks proved to him that the body of Jesse James never had been stolen; and he could go back to his grandmother and allay her fears that, possibly, in spite of her 20 years' vigil, her son's grave had been violated.

But there are said to be persons in Clay County who still refuse to believe that the real Jesse James is dead. To such doubters as these a postal card received this morning by the City Marshal of Kearney—the town has 700 people and a City Marshal—furnished new proof, but to the rest it is a ghastly joke. It was mailed in a Kansas town and signed "Original Jesse James." The writer said:

"I will not be buried in Carny next Sunday. I am not dead. I was not shot by Bobie Ford. Tom Howard was shot by Bobie Ford, but I wasn't there, so you can't bury me."

Laffoon and Pollock lifted the coffin bottom and carried it to the side of the new casket. They scraped the skeleton into the coffin. The hands were folded over the breast, just as they had been placed 20 years ago.

Identity of the Body Certain.

The new coffin was closed and placed in the little parlor room of the house, to await the coming of the pall bearers later in the day, and James and Samuel returned to the town.

Mrs. Samuel did not know that the body had been disinterred until young Jesse returned to the Burlington Hotel. She was there awaiting him, in the little parlor. She inquired immediately as to the condition of the body and appeared relieved when she learned that it undoubtedly was Jesse's.

Meanwhile Frank James, in his bed upstairs, was receiving old comrades. Seven Quantrill troopers came in on the morning train from Kansas City. They went at once to Mr. James' room. The men are William H. Gregg of Kansas City, who was a Captain under Quantrill; his brother, Attorney J. Frank Gregg of Grain Valley, Mo., a Lieutenant in the same command; James Sim Whitsett, Lee's Summit, Mo.; Hiram J. George, Oak Grove, Mo., who was a Captain; Benjamin H. Morrow, Lake City, Mo.; Warren W. Welch, Independence, Mo., and J. C. Ervin, Marshall, Mo. The first six served as pallbearers and Mr. Ervin followed to assist.

Jesse's Brother Frank Attends.

"I'm going, though," said the sick man. "I've got my winter clothes, a thick pair of overshoes and an overcoat, and I feel sure it won't hurt me to go."

Mrs. Samuel sent up advice for her son to stay in bed, but she was told that he intended going to the burial.

"He'll go, then," was the mother's comment. "When Frank James says he'll do a thing, he does it."

Dinner was served in the hotel dining room at 11:30 o'clock, and a few minutes after 12 the little procession started for the farm, the rain having subsided to a mere drizzle. Along winding country roads, deep in mud but fringed with green hedges, wild roses in full blossom, clover and cornfields, the hearse and the carriages wound.

"There is where little Jesse's sister lives," remarked my driver, pointing to a neat white farmhouse upon a hill, halfway out to the Samuel farm. Here in Kearney the son of Jesse James is called "little Jesse," though he weighs 190 pounds, 23 more than his father did, and is big enough to conduct a Kanas City pawnshop. His sister is Mrs. Mary Barr, wife of a prominent farmer. A little farther along, the driver pointed out the home of Mrs. Joseph Hall, one of the half-sisters of Frank and Jesse James. Mrs. William Nicholson, the other half-sister, also lives in the neighborhood. All these were present at the burial today.

Crossing swollen and muddy creeks, one of which is called Muddy Fork, which fits its condition, and another of which is called Clear Creek, which is a misfit, our procession presently came in sight of the farmhouse where the new coffin awaited us.

It may be noted in passing that Jesse James was baptized in Muddy Fork in 1868, when he joined the Kearney Baptist Church. I talked today with Mr. Major of Kearney, who witnessed the immersion.

As the procession reached the farmhouse, the rain ceased entirely. The clouds broke into splotches and the sunlight shone out for a moment, just as the six veterans bore the coffin from the house to the hearse.

Mrs. Samuel and Mrs. Frank James, with Mrs. H. George, sat for a few minutes on the front porch before the remains were brought out. Frank James, during this time, pointed out to his friends the side window through which Pinkerton detectives in 1875 threw the bomb that killed 8-year-old Archie P. Samuel and tore off the right forearm of Mrs. Samuel. John Samuel, who as a boy in the house at the time, told how the calamity occurred, and Frank James who was far away that winter night, remarked with some sarcasm that a revolver was found in a field near the house next morning bearing initials which showed that it belonged to a Pinkerton.

"The State," said Frank James, "took the revolver as evidence, but I guess it never got any farther than that."

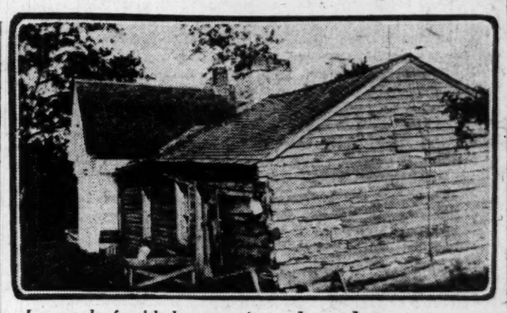

At the side of the yard, Frank James pointed out a whitewashed log cabin.

"Jesse was born there," he said. "I was born three miles from here."

Frank James did not point out the portholes in the log house, nor the bullet holes in the fence and the stable. Some of "the boys" examined these.

After the body was placed in the hearse, Mrs. Samuel, supported by young Jesse James and one of the women, walked back to the old grave under the coffeebean tree. The wrecked coffin had been reburied there. She stood for a moment looking at the grave and then walked slowly to her carriage.

Natured was kind on the trip back to town. It did not rain upon the cortege. A different route was taken on the way back—a road over which Jesse James had ridden on horseback many and many a time, as boy and man.

Hundreds at the Grave.

Hundreds of townspeople were gathered at the grave, where Zach Laffoon and Zip Pollock again performed the duties of sextons. Strangers read the inscription on the only tombstone in the family lot:

"Archie P., son of R. and Z. Samuel, killed Jan. 28, 1875, aged 8 years and 6 months. Our hearts in his grave are lying."

Our very hopes belied our fears;
Our fears our hopes belied.
We thought him dying when he slept;
And sleeping when he died.
From when the sun came dim and sad
And chill with early showers,
His quiet eyelids closed—he had Another morn than ours.

The widow of Jesse James was buried there a year ago this month, her remains having reposed in a vault at Kansas City for over a year after her death. The father of Frank and Jesse James is buried in California, where he died.

Mrs. Samuel, who is a woman of remarkable energy for her years, says she is going back to the farm next March, as soon as the lease expires.

"I can't be contented anywhere else," she said to me. "I have lived on that place 58 years. All my children were born there except Frank. There I have seen one of my sons murdered and another brought home to be buried, who was murdered at St. Joseph. There my right arm was shot off. Much trouble has come to me there, but I love the old place and want to live there till I die.

"I do not believe that any woman in the world has had as much trouble as I have, or has had so much wrong done to her. I have had trouble enough to have lived 150 years. Do you know Mr. Frank?"

Mrs. Samuel usually refers to her son, in the presence of strangers, as "Mr. Frank."

Mr. Frank Still Living.

"I am very proud of him. He is good to me, and he has promised to move out to the farm and stay with me till I die. He is going away next winter, to go on the stage, and I don't see how I can stand it. Since he came to Kearney, two months ago, he has been with me more than at any time since he went to the war; and when he made a trip to St. Louis last week, from Friday to Sunday, I could hardly stand it.

"I am so proud that Mr. Frank has won the respect and good will of the people. He has regained his reputation, and he deserves to be well thought of."

Mr. Major, who told me of Jesse James' immersion in Muddy Fork, told also of his conversion and his joining the Baptist church in Kearney. It is interesting to note that the Baptist Church of that day was located upon the spot, since turned into a cemetery, where Jesse James was buried today.

"He joined the church and was baptized in 1868," said Mr. Major. "I notice by the church records that he was 'excluded' the next year, 1869. I was a little fellow then, but I remember hearing my mother tell about Jesse James leading in prayer one night at prayer meeting. The only thing she recollected about his prayer was that he prayed for the salvation of his brother Frank.

"I remember very distinctly the first funeral of Jesse James in April, 1882. It was preached by the Rev. Mr. Martin, the Baptist minister, and there was a great crowd present. The body was brought here and placed first in a hotel which stood where the Commercial Hotel now is. The coffin was opened and we looked at the face through the glass. The corpse wore a full beard and moustache. Everybody who had known him recognized him."

Mr. and Mrs. Frank James and Mrs. Samuel accompanied the Quantrill veterans to the train this evening and bade them goodbye. Before boarding the train "the boys" began talking about horses.

CAPTIVE AMERICAN SAFE IN CHINESE BANDIT CAMP

Prisoner Released by Brigands Identifies Photograph as That of Dr. H. J. Howard.

By the Associated Press.

PEKIN, Aug. 20.—Dr. Harvey J. Howard, the American who was captured some time ago by bandits in Manchuria at the same time they killed Morgan Palmer, formerly of Plattsburg, N. Y., has been located in a bandit camp, some 40 miles from Fuenow-Hsien. Dr. Howard is reported to be well.

A Chinese prisoner released by the bandits recognized a photograph shown to him as that of Howard. He said that Howard was being treated well pending payment of the ransom demanded by the bandits.

Troops are reported to have surrounded the district, making the escape of the bandits impossible, but owing to the desire to avoid placing Howard in jeopardy through an attack, they are being held back and negotiations for the release are proceeding.

Dr. Howard was chief of the department of ophthalmology at Pekin Union Medical College, established by the Rockefeller Foundation. Previously he was a research student in the Harvard Medical School.

A dispatch from Harbin, Manchuria, on July 23, said that Morgan Palmer, long resident in the Far East, had been killed while assisting inhabitants of a village near his ranch on the Sungari River to repulse an attack of brigands. Dr. Howard, who was visiting the ranch, was made prisoner by the brigands and taken away.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 20.—According to reports received here, nine British missionaries, including four women, were kidnaped by bandits in a raid upon a Chinese summer resort, a few miles north of Chengtu, Zechuan Province, on Aug. 6. The captured persons, who included Bishop Mowell, were members of the Church Missionary Society.

The bandits swept down upon the resort from the hills, carrying off the missionaries, who were sojourning there during the hot weather.

Only brief messages have been received here, but it is believed that this coup was merely a money-making effort encouraged by the prevalent civil war and lack of civil authority in the province. Bishop Mowell is assistant Bishop in West China. His wife was among the women captured.

Just after returning from a trip abroad with her husband, Harry Williams, she was rushed to the hospital Tuesday. Her sister, Cora Clark, and her husband said she was entirely out of danger, though it may be three weeks before she can leave for her home in Louisiana. Before her illness her husband had given his consent for her return to the screen.

Professor Gets Ten Months for Attempt to Form Communist Society.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Aug. 25.—Gaku Sano was today sentenced to 10 months in prison on a charge of attempting to form a secret communist society. Sano, a former Waseda University professor, and one of the leading Socialists of Japan, surrendered himself for trial after returning voluntarily from Russia, to which country he had fled in May, 1923.

His departure from Japan was at the time the Tokio police were arresting large numbers of so-called radicals.

Treatment of First Offenders.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE opinions of Dr. Malcolm A. Bliss relative to the examination of persons accused of crime to determine their responsibility, as stated in the magazine section of your issue of Aug. 16, 1925, is timely and to the point, but why does not the doctor go further in his suggestions?

If his recommendations are right, why put any first offender on trial, or even confine him in a jail, workhouse, holdover or house of detention, with old offenders, before he has had a thorough and searching psychiatric, medical and dental examination, and his heredity, home life and environments ascertained to determine just how far he is responsible as charged? If this were done with every first offender, instead of being the exception, fewer persons would be jailed for doing things for which a sanatorium is the proper place.

I am constrained to ask this question because I am occasionally asked for my opinion in Juvenile Court cases, and I find that very few even of these cases are referred to the psychiatric clinic. In fact, none, so far as I can ascertain, except those where mental defects are so pronounced that any layman can detect them. In the Juvenile Court, if in any place, there is need of just such a thorough examination of all first offenders as suggested above, for there the future of the delinquent child is largely determined, and many children brought into the Juvenile Court for the second or further offenses could be reclaimed if more use were made of the psychiatric clinic.

The remedy for the "crime wave" in "big business" and elsewhere is better boys and girls and since it is futile to attempt to freshen a rotten egg, why try to change the adults of today? They will all be dead soon, so turn your attention to the children, and make this your slogan: Better children make a better world, and don't forget, you can't get away from your grandfather.

This for "J. D."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

J. D. volunteers the information that the great majority of players go out "for recreation only" and would be just as well satisfied with a poor course as a good one.

Well, if this is true, there are about 1000 acres of the park in which to gratify that desire. I would advise them not to bother with golf or any other game that calls for skill, or carries the elements of a contest.

The man who plays golf without a determination to play a good game and win could enjoy billiards on a burlap table with a clothes prop for a cue, if it did not cost anything.

J. D. has not the remotest idea of the expense necessary to keep up a golf course, nor has he much of an idea on any of the other points he brings up.

His unfair and offensive reference to the "greasing of the Miller machine" stamps his whole complaint as unworthy of consideration. G. F. H.

St. Louis Street Paving.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE city is still being trimmed on patent and other so-called asphalt paving. More contracts are now being let, so, more trimming. Kingshighway and a dozen other streets that are difficult to drive over show the result of engineers being driven by politicians to do what they would not do in private business.

Consider the concrete paving all over the country, particularly in St. Louis County and Illinois. Yet, our construction engineers in St. Louis are laying asphaltic concrete, warrenite bitulithic, sheet asphalt, granite block and oiled gravel.

There are holes in St. Louis streets that are dangerous for any driver, caused by faulty material, even of the poor kind now used. If automobile owners realized the large amount of extra cost in gasoline, tires and car upkeep there would be more protest. The best engineering experience shows the value of cement or concrete. Why continue poorer material? This is a matter of much importance to our people.

Invisible Pedestrians.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

YOUR wonderful picture on the editorial page of woman and child run down by auto ought to surely appeal to all autoists to be careful.

Permit me to suggest an idea which I think pedestrians should observe at night or in darkness:

People in dark clothes, black, navy, or any dark color cannot be seen by auto driver until he almost strikes them. No driver will deliberately run down anyone unless he is drinking and does not know what he is doing.

ONLY ONE BELGIUM.

France and Italy, it is forecast, will ask for the same terms that have been granted Belgium. Indeed, it is the general impression that Belgium was sent on ahead, in the belief that the liberal treatment she would receive could be used as a precedent, or at least a "talking point," by those other debtors.

That may have been good strategy. Anyhow, nobody can blame France or Italy for trying to make the best bargain possible. It is a fact, however, that Belgium's position as a debtor and an ally was unique, and that fact was recognized not only by President Wilson, who promised Belgium special consideration, but it was recognized also by Lloyd George and Clemenceau.

This recognition was deserved. It was not questioned by the American commission, which properly construed Wilson's promise as a moral obligation, and that attitude, it may be ventured, is supported by American public opinion.

Neither France nor Italy, however, can present Belgium's moral claim for preferential treatment. On that point American public opinion is fixed and unalterable. The commission is aware of that. So is the administration. So is Congress. This opinion cannot safely be disregarded.

At the same time it may confidently be assumed that there is no general disposition in the United States to act the part of a ruthless creditor. It goes without saying that the French and Italian commissions will be accorded a fair hearing. The negotiations will be conducted with a full appreciation of their difficulties. But neither France nor Italy, if well advised, will present itself as another Belgium. Such assumption would strike a false note and would prejudice American public opinion, which is necessarily the final court of appeal.

America's official position from the first has been that those debts must be paid. That is our irreducible minimum. Any practical terms that will meet that requirement must be burdensome to the debtors. It is our duty, of course, to make the terms as liberal as fairness will permit. But fairness to all our debtors does not mean identical terms to all. France and Italy are entitled to terms according to their respective merits and circumstances, not according to the merits and circumstances of Belgium.

There was only one Belgium.

ARE THE RAILROADS WORTH SAVING?

The pledge of representative interests in 77 cities and towns on the Frisco Railway that they will continue to use railway service wherever possible as against truck and automobile transportation is a significant development in the transportation struggle. The motive of the localities, of course, is to preserve present railway service for local benefit, and, if possible, to obtain improvement. While there may be no special septiment in favor of the railways the towns now served do not wish to see that service gradually go to pieces under the stress of gasoline motor competition conducted on highways for which the public is taxed.

Whether or not the pledge will be effective in saving the railroads, handicapped as they are by modern conditions, is a matter for speculation. If the river cities and villages had made a conscious effort to preserve river transportation in the face of the mighty onward march of the railroads would they have succeeded? They might at least have influenced Congress to check the cut-throat practices of the railroads to kill the water lines. Even then they might have been hard put to it to save river packet service without the mechanical improvement which has since been brought about in the modern barge.

It is at least fair and meet that the public should realize the value of the railways before they are crippled or wrecked by local motorized competition. If the railroads are displaced can any present practical form of transportation satisfactorily fill the vacancy? Is present motorized transportation in fact cheaper when the wear on public highways and the enormous taxes paid by the railroads are considered? These factors should all be weighed before the railroads are permitted to slip into bankruptcy and decay.

On the other hand there is a lesson for the railroads. Instead of leaning on the Government and public favor they should strive for new inventions and mechanical improvements and rid themselves of cumbersome and archaic organization to provide service that will satisfy modern demand and meet competition.

Maybe Wisconsin University will repent its appointment of a magazine editor to its presidency, when it might have chosen a distinguished scientist on its own faculty, the inventor of the U-boat detector. Chicago University has nabbed the latter, and will no doubt utilize his inventive faculty in raising that $11,000,000 fund for buildings and endowments.

MOST WOMEN WILL BE WOMEN.

It is all very well for Miss Lucile Pugh, New York attorney, to warn her sisters that "the business woman should do away with the air of special privilege ultra-feminine clothes give her." She may practice what she preaches, too, as it is said she does, leaning to masculinity of garb, as far as skirts will permit, in her working raiment. That is all right for Lucile, if she feels that way about it, but there is little reason for the ready-to-wear trade to totter, or the silk worms to call it a day.

Lucile may not know it, but the truth is that many girls seek employment in the clanging marts merely from a longing for the feminine finery she deplores. If, as sometimes happens, such adornment should give "an air of special privilege," or even special privilege itself, most of those in the glad habiliments will feel this consideration due them, no matter how they may clamor for equal rights.

The women may emulate the men in absorption of nicotine; they may compete with the male in business, trades and professions, even to big league baseball, but they will, for the most part, wish to be women still. Anyhow, they will be women, regardless of wishes, and there seems to be no widespread objection to letting them dress the part.

There are equalizing influences, too, even without uniformity of dress. If woman is accorded courtesies no man receives she probably gets less pay for similar employment, thus demonstrating that chivalry isn't all it was when knighthood was in flower and clothed in hardware hand-me-downs. By and large, the women in gainful occupations would gain little by aping man's attire. They might lose a great deal by such transition, including their jobs, no doubt, in many instances.

SENATOR WILLIAMS ON HOME RULE.

We of St. Louis fully appreciate the words of Senator Williams on "St. Louis Day" at the State Fair in Sedalia, when he said:

> The policy of controlling the police forces of our cities through the appointment of Police Commissioners by the Governor is undemocratic, un-American and unworthy of the best thought and sentiment of our State.

If the truth of that statement hitherto had been sufficiently appreciated in the smaller cities and rural districts of Missouri the czarist rule of State politicians over the St. Louis Police Department would now have been but a memory. Senator Williams has frankly and courageously voiced the cause of home rule for St. Louis before a mixed audience in Sedalia. While he is officially without power to alter the system which he condemns, his words will have state-wide influence. Such expressions from important sources help to enlighten public sentiment in the State and pave the way to good understanding and justice for the cities of the State. Home rule in all local affairs is fundamental to democracy and essential to justice and good relations between the people of the State as a whole and the people of the communities.

Both the Republican and Democratic parties have been guilty of bad faith in dealing with the demand for home rule in St. Louis. Both merit the implied condemnation of Senator Williams.

WHEN THE WEST WAS YOUNG.

Beneath an aged oak at Council Grove, Kan., Indians of the Kaw and Osage tribes gathered recently to celebrate with their white countrymen the centenary of the signing of the treaty which marked the opening of the Santa Fe trail. That pact, which remained unbroken through the years, was President John Quincy Adams' plan to assure safe passage for caravans to the trading posts in New Mexico. Plains Indians further west were to terrorize it later, but the Osages and the Kaws had made an agreement that held through the changing years of gold rushes, buffalo hunts and settlement that gave the Santa Fe trail its traffic before the railways came.

It is a matter of history that the Indians received trifling payment from the whites, when there was any payment at all. The sum of $600 covered the cost of this right of way through Kaw and Osage country. Our civilization, firm in its conviction of superiority, has been none too considerate of red men, wherever the two have clashed. Nor did the Indians deal kindly with the white interlopers in the main, until sheer force of numbers had taught the utter folly of resistance. But there are pleasant chapters in the history of these contacts which the two races can celebrate together in friendship.

Perhaps the Indians are losers still, for they were fitted to the life they led, and too often are unsuited to the change a dominant race forced upon them. Yet it has happened that these Osages, who were savages of the forest a century ago, have come to be the wealthiest people of the world. And in our highest legislative body the leader of the party in power is proud of the Kaw blood that courses his veins. The Santa Fe trail is a broad highway today, and in it may be cause for pride among the descendants of those who opened that gateway to the West.

MILL CREEK VALLEY POSSIBILITIES.

How St. Louis' ugly, smoke-producing Mill Creek Valley may be transformed into a smokeless, handsome and immensely profitable section of the city is suggested by Chicago's plan to electrify about 75 acres occupied by railroad yards in the congested Loop district.

By 1930 these railroad yards will be completely electrified. And the plans involve placing all the rail lines in inclosed ways, the space above and around them to be sold for building purposes. It is expected that in this space numerous office buildings, stores and perhaps apartments will be erected. In other words, an area now given up only to transportation and occupied by smoking locomotives and trains, will become one of the most desirable and profitable sections of the city. Mr. Charles H. Markham, president of the Illinois Central Railroad, is said to have predicted that this change will increase the business district of Chicago approximately 50 per cent, and that the railroads, which will be greatly benefited by the new conditions, expect to realize largely on the new values created.

St. Louis' railroad yards occupy a much greater area than the 75 acres which cut into Chicago's Loop district. Electrification is badly needed here, regardless of plans that might be developed to improve this area on the Chicago idea. That idea, however, has tempting possibilities for immense profits, in addition to the direct benefit to the city by the elimination of so much smoke, grime and noise inseparable from the present method of handling terminal and through railroad traffic in the heart of the congested district.

SOCRATES AND HIS PUPILS.

Socrates: Did you read about the Florida rich man who took a trainload of his relations on a tour of the country?

Glaucon: Yes.

Socrates: What impression did you get from it?

Glaucon: It struck me that he is probably the only rich man in the country who will die in entirely good conscience.

Glaucon: Yes. If he can find some useful way to do so.

Socrates: He is aware of that obligation, you think.

Glaucon: Certainly. Otherwise his conscience would not be involved.

Socrates: That is quite true, my dear Glaucon. It does you great credit. The reason is that notwithstanding we are not in the times of feudalism, when the family perforce stood together, none of us is freed from responsibility to the family. For instance, if one of us is successful, is not the whole family proud? Or if one of us is hanged, is not the whole family ashamed?

Glaucon: Certainly.

Socrates: Very well. Then whether in good or ill repute, we do constitute a community every member of which is responsible to us all.

Glaucon: Yes.

Socrates: So that the rich man in Florida, who had made a killing in real estate, did not need to be told that he owed his relations some sort of treat.

Glaucon: No.

Socrates: He knew that, and instead of going to his grave in bad conscience about it he gave this tour and set the matter forever all hunkadory.

Glaucon: Precisely.

Socrates: I am glad it happened. It serves to remind all of us of our responsibility to the family. When the family keeps its name in good repute, we owe it something if we succeed. That is one of the things that have made civilization. It began with the home, and in time spread through the family, the tribe and the nation. Latterly we have been advancing the postulate that all human beings owe one another no less than good conduct. Christianity goes so far as to ask shame of us all for the shame of one, joy of us all for the well-being of one.

Glaucon: Truly.

Socrates: I don't suppose the Florida man who took his relations on tour was philosopher enough to figure all this out in the way we have done. Had he been the sort of person we are he would not have turned any such real estate deal. Nevertheless, he felt the urge of something greater than we are, and he was a good enough man not to resist it. No law compelled him to give such a trip. Probably most rich men would have died with apoplexy at the suggestion. He did it because he felt he ought to do it, and those are always the things most worth doing.

Polemarchus: You have it again.

Socrates: Then that is settled. Now let us watch that policeman over there and see if we are to witness some sort of raid.

A ST. LOUISAN ABROAD.

England.

A bit of sympathy and a pipe of tobacco put me in touch with Jimmie Hewart, fisherman of the North Seas.

It was at Oban. I had wandered on to the dock where the great fleet was in, after nine days and nights of trawling in the rough seas that stretch from Leith around the north of Scotland.

The crew was drowning its troubles, and keeping the bars and the police of the little town busy. Anyone with half an eye and a bit of a nose for news could sense rebellion in the air.

One had to walk those decks cluttered with nets, ropes, tackle, winches, pulleys and fish and try to picture them on a black, wet, cold night in the waters of Cape Wrath to understand Jimmie and his pals, and Jimmie's story of the unceasing toil of setting and drawing nets, of pulling on heavy wet ropes, of decks running with water and slimy with fish, of the tedious and filthy task of cleaning and sorting—of foul bunks and lack of sleep, of bad food snatched between trawls and eaten with numb wet fingers—and then—wet, cold, weary, hungry and far from home suddenly the glow and warmth and hospitable comfort of Oban's grog shops.

Release from command! Companionship! Freedom!

"Bly me, mister!" exploded Jimmie, "how kin a bloke help gettin' a bit stewed?"

Since 9 o'clock the trawler's whistle had been sounding intermittently calling the unwilling back to their hated work. At 11, when I left the dock, no one had stirred. Long after midnight, as I lay in my warm bed at the hotel, I could hear its frantic insistence. And then I thought of Jimmie and the cozy "pub," and again of the cold, black, wet nights outside, of the cluttered slimy decks and the rough seas, and I began to understand something he had muttered about the skipper every time that siren blew! ### AIR SPEED RECORDS.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

NAVY and Marine Corps pilots have been chosen to compete with the army fliers for the Pulitzer trophy at the international air races to be held at Mitchel Field in October. In this race, the feature of the meet, the competitors encircle four times a 50-kilometer course, the total distance of 200 kilometers being about 124 miles. Last year the winner attained a speed of nearly 216 miles an hour, but the record for the course is about 243 miles an hour. This compares favorably with the world speed record of almost 270 miles an hour established by Lieut. A. J. Williams of the Navy, at Mitchel Field, Nov. 4, 1922.

After all, it is speed flying rather than the calisthenics of the air which interests the American public. We are more concerned to learn that the continent is spanned in less than 18 hours, or that the Atlantic is crossed in a little more than 15 hours, than to know that somebody has looped the loop oftener within the hour than anyone else, or made more tail spins, and nose dives without stopping. The "stunts" no doubt have their value as teaching control of the human organism and the insensate mechanism. But flight, as fast and as fast as possible, is the appropriate object lesson, and the international exhibition is an incentive to further development in applied science that are much more important than transient personal notoriety.

COFFIN NAILS.

From the Los Angeles Times.

THE annual per capita consumption of tobacco in the United States has increased from one-eighth of a pound to more than six pounds in the last 40 years. The Anticigarette League, which has been for about half that time, doesn't seem to have nearly so many monuments to its credit as the cigarettes have.

TO AVOID THE KNIFE.

From the Cleveland News.

MUSSOLINI, only 42 years old, on Wednesday, is threatened with an operation for ulcers in the duodenum, the first intestine into which food passes directly from the stomach.

Such ulcers—they killed Napoleon—afflict men that eat carelessly, too rapidly, thinking while they eat, and using their brains intensely immediately after eating.

If Mussolini every morning would take a half pint of carefully scoured milk, one egg, a cup of weak tea—nothing else—no breakfast but cooked fruit, then a light dinner, a late supper and chew every mouthful thoroughly, he might cure himself without the help of a surgeon's knife.

Is diet important for young and old? Sport writers tell you that McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, knows every day what everyone of his players eats.

To one young pitcher "shelled off the mound in one inning" McGraw said satirically: "Maybe sardines, watermelon and milk for lunch don't agree with you." The young man took the hint.

If young athletes in the prime of youth and physical condition must eat sensibly, what about the business man whose figure requires both belt and suspenders?

GRAND OPERA FESTIVAL TO OPEN TONIGHT

Performance of "Aida" to Be Given Unless Rain Prevents.

If it proves at all possible, Director Golterman stated this morning, the scheduled performance of "Aida" will be given tonight at the Municipal Theater as the opening of his grand opera festival.

The weather forecast is for thunderstorms this afternoon or tonight, with a possibility that the rains will pass over during the day and the skies clear by evening. In case of postponement, Golterman said, tickets will be exchangeable for any of the five succeeding performances of "Aida." Fair weather is predicted for tomorrow.

Instead of Manuel Salazar, as previously announced, Forrest Lamont of the Chicago Civic Opera Company has been chosen to sing Radames in the initial performance. Isaac Van Grove, who has trained the chorus, will conduct.

The cast will be as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Aida | Maria Escobar |
| The King | Antonio Nicolich |
| Amneris | Marta Wittowska |
| Radames | Forrest Lamont |
| Amonasro | Giuseppe Interrante |
| Ramfis | Giovanni Martino |
| Messenger | Ludovico Oliviero |
| Priestess | Elizabeth Kerr |

Arrangements for a production on a grand scale have been made, including a chorus of 225, a ballet of 50, an orchestra of 52, a stage band of 16, and 20 mounted horsemen for the triumphal scene in the second act. Final touches in stage direction were given by Alex Puglia last night during a rehearsal at the Musicians' Club, following a full dress rehearsal Tuesday evening at the Municipal Theater.

'THE TEN COMMANDMENTS' BEGINS RUN AT MISSOURI

Spectacular Motion Picture, Which Had Previous Run Downtown, at Grand Avenue House.

"The Ten Commandments," Cecil B. De Mille's photo drama which, about a year ago, was shown at the American Theater at advanced prices, yesterday started a 10-day stay at the Missouri Theater. The picture tells a modern story of a man who succeeds in breaking all of the commandments before he finds that the wages of sin are death, but throughout the film Cecil B. De Mille, who directed it, cuts in many shots of biblical days showing that men and women have been pretty much of the same character throughout the ages. The scenes of ancient days are handsomely made in colors and the play is a splendid and beautiful spectacle.

Among the members of the large cast are Theodore Roberts, who plays Moses, the last role he was able to actively portray for the camera before being overtaken by a serious illness; Richard Dix, Rod La Rocque, Leatrice Joy, Nita Naldi and Estelle Taylor.

most prominent peaks, virtually on opposite centers of the valley, the Mayas had built two interesting cities. The peaks were terraced and supported by pyramids. On the right is Cololte; on the left, Kanpomtic. Santa Theresa, consisting of a small group of mounds and terraces, is near Ocosingo. San Antonio, a more important ruin, occupies the farther end of the valley. Tonina is on the left side between Ocosingo and San Antonio.

Statues of Rulers.

After four days work at Tonina, the explorers unearthed 18 new monuments, consisting of human figures carved in sandy limestone. They were of sizes varying from natural height to little more than a foot high. Most of them were statues of rulers or high priests, all elaborately dressed. They stand stiffly erect in attitudes of devotion, holding stone bars with star glyphs carved on them.

The figures wore cow-puncher wristlets and anklets, and most of them wore masks and breast ornaments. Heavy and elaborately decorated belts encircle their waists, with flaps, beautifully carved, hanging down to the ankles. Cloaks completely inscribed with symbols hang down the backs. One of the dates was found to be, in Maya numerals, 9-13-0-0-0, 8 ahau, 8Uo, meaning May 19, 422 A. D.

"One of the most interesting features about this series of monuments," Blom explained, "is the fact that the heads of all the standing figures have been knocked off. In the cases of the figures in base relief on the altars, the faces and parts of the figures have been chiseled or mutilated in other ways.

"This vandalism must have been perpetrated by the old Spanish priest who thus hoped to discourage the Indians from using the monuments as altars for the pagan devotional rites. That their work went for nought will be proved later in the story. The old friars wrote of having mutilated many Indian idols in their accounts of this same region published many years ago. Fortunately, few of the inscriptions were injured, principally, I suppose, because the priests did not know their meaning.

One Head Knocked Off.

"In only one case had the friars omitted to destroy one of the heads hacked from an idol. This one contained an elaborately carved and inscribed headdress, reaching from the back of the head nearly to the ground. On it the date, 432 A. D., was found. This head, unfortunately, failed to fit any of the statues found in the vicinity."

The explorers then crossed the Jtate River. An Indian lad told them he believed there was an idol on the top of the mountain at a place called Colote. So they zigzagged their way up to the highest point on the range with their horses and climbed the final lap on foot.

They found the top had been terraced to support a temple. The north side sloped down gradually into the valley, but the south side was like a vertical wall with a sheer drop of many thousands of feet. On the terrace was found a small square built of rock, with a level top on which sat a queer idol three feet high. It had no head and the upper part of the figure had been badly mutilated. A ring of stone encircled the base and sticks split four ways for use as candlesticks surrounded the whole. Blankets of pine needles were laid here and there. Inside the stone ring were clay bowls, in which a sweet-smelling incense or "pom" was found.

Indians Worship Idols.

Here, kneeling on the pine needles, breathing the musky incense and swaying their heads in the eiris glow of the sputtering candles, the modern "Catholic" Indians go to worship the pagan god of their ancestors when they need rain.

Constantly, during the expedition, the party deviated from the main route to investigate reports regarding new idols or ruins. They had heard of a place called Santo Ton, meaning "Saint of Stone" several times. So they rode out of the valley and, after climbing a steep ascent, they turned back for a gorgeous view of the big valley they had explored during the ast fortnight.

On the summit was a rich tropical forest. The descent on the other side brought them to a pine forest and thence to a valley at the end of which lies the large coffee-cattle ranch, San Jose Reforma.

Three miles from the ranch in the midst of a beautifully picturesque country lay the ruins. The main mound, badly destroyed by the owners to obtain building stone, lay on a broad terrace built in the mountain-side. One monument, after the moss of many centuries had been removed, revealed a fine row of symbols and a real Maya figure in strong relief.

stones—the majority of which contained valuable inscriptions—from the ruins eight miles away to use them for building purposes.

Virtually all of them had been parts of stately temples at Tonina. They were found in all sorts of queer places. One square altar was being utilized as a doorstep to a house. Two fragments of altars formed parts of the walls of two houses. Three idols with inscriptions had been thrown into a pig sty in the rear of a church. One altar was badly broken. The upper half, containing a circular hole at the top, had been carried to a high hill as a marker for a grave and a cross placed in the hole. The other half was about to be used by its owner to form the rim of a cement tank he was constructing. These two last ones gave the date of the time when this Maya area flourished—422 A. D.

The explorers soon discovered that the Ocosingo Valley was enclosed by two parallel lower ranges, behind which ran a deep, narrow valley and beside that across a higher range of mountains. This gave the valley the appearance of a monster natural stadium, 15 miles long and 5 miles wide. Jagged peaks raise themselves loftily from the high range. On the tips of the two

AIR SPEED RECORDS.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

NAVY and Marine Corps pilots have been chosen to compete with the army fliers for the Pulitzer trophy at the international air races to be held at Mitchel Field in October. In this race, the feature of the meet, the competitors encircle four times a 50-kilometer course, the total distance of 200 kilometers being about 124 miles. Last year the winner attained a speed of nearly 216 miles an hour, but the record for the course is about 243 miles an hour. This compares favorably with the world's speed record of almost 270 miles an hour, established by Lieut. A. J. Williams of the Navy, at Mitchel Field, Nov. 4, 1923.

After all, it is speed flying rather than the calisthenics of the air which interests the American public. day's ride from Tonina, this monument is distinct in style and gives the impression that the steep mountain range formed a natural barrier between the Maya dwellers of the San Jose Valley and Tonina.

"This leads us to believe for the first time that subcultures or subtribes of the Mayas flourished contemporaneously but at the same time independently of each other," Blom explained. "We found other indications of the same extraordinary thing at other ruins.

"The discovery of a big center of civilization in Ocosingo Valley is of primary importance because it proves for the first time that the Mayas were so vast a race that it was possible for two huge centers of culture to exist at the same time in different sections of the old empire. Dates we unearthed showed us that the Ocosingo civilization thrived at least between 400 and 530 A. D., the same time during which Palenque Branch reached its height. By further study of the regions we hope to get more detailed information on them and possibly prove that there are at least two distinct stocks of the Maya language.

"For example, Pelenque may be the Chol branch and Ocosingo Valley the Tzeltal branch of the Maya, just like Italy and France, existing side by side and yet speaking a different tongue.

Altars in Caves.

"Several mounds were found at Chakalchib, on one of which the modern Indians had planted a cross. Half way down the side of the main pyramid were two caves. In them altars were arranged by the same Indians with split sticks for candelabras, crosses and other devotional paraphernalia. The Indians still came there to worship their 'God of the Mountains.'"

After a long ride to Agua Escondida, where a magnificent ruined temple never before visited by scientists was found, the explorers returned to Ocosingo. On their way they stopped at a place near which natives had reported a cave full of hidden treasures. The property once had been the site of the Central Mission of the Dominican monks. The cave proved to have been a burial chamber.

A passage 25 feet long led to the main room, built in the heart of an artificial mound. The chamber was inclosed by huge stone slabs, one of which measured 14 feet long, four feet wide and two feet thick. It was smooth and appeared to have been carved from limestone rock. One can only imagine how the Indians of 15 centuries ago were able to cut it from the mountain side, bring it to the cave and set it up.

The Tulane party reached Comitan, their last important objective, on July 22. They drove down Fifth avenue to Eighth street and thence to Seventh avenue and up to a metropolitan hotel. This town is the home of the famous San Bartholome Indians.

An Engineering Feat.

One of the main features of the Comitan Valley is the stupendous piece of engineering resorted to by the old Mayas. The entire valley has its side artifically tarraced with stone to prevent the many streams pouring bottomward from washing away the hillsides. It is another proof that the ancient race used methods of construction 1500 years ago which are utilized by modern engineers.

The inhabitants of Comitan have missed completely the scientific value of these terraces. They believe one leading to the top of a large mound at Hun Chabin, for example, is simply a spiral ascent to the top of a big hill. At this site the explorers discovered an amazing thing. An amateur local archaeologist appeared on the scene with the claim of having made one of the most important discoveries in Maya research. He showed them a human jaw he had found at the mound. Several of the lower rear teeth had been extracted. When found, the amateur claimed that a large bone ring had been grafted into the jaw by the old Maya dentists to replace the teeth.

"We look upon this discovery as rather doubtful," Blom said. "It seems impossible for a human being to undergo such a painful operation. We did find an important collection of pottery at the mound, however. The designs proved this mound to be a large part of the old empire culture."

"The explorers then left Comitan for Tenam, where they found a carved stone stela "monument" in the yard of the ranch. Next to it was the fragment of another monument. At the main ruins they discovered a monster amphitheater, containing many stone monuments. The ancient Maya builders, in erecting their amphitheater, had taken advantage of the peculiar hill formation at this point. There were many interesting mounds which, because of their contract with the Mexican Government, the explorers reluctantly left without excavation.

A Center of Culture.

Blom and Lafarge intended to go from here direct to Guatamela, but digressed when they heard of carved stones 15 miles away being used as steps to another ranch. There they found fragments of three stelas and several large mounds. The hieroglyphs proved that there had flourished a city during the very latest period of the old Maya empire.

"The Comitan Valley and its ruins seem to have been one of the flourishing cultural centers of the old empire," Blom said. "Apparently it thrived by itself at the extreme Southern end of the empire. Dates found there are only 10 years earlier than the oldest dates found in Northern Yuestan. As the Yucatan dates represent the beginning of the new empire, one can only conclude that some Maya tribes migrated over 1000 miles northward in 10 years."

The explorers then urged their mounts toward Guatemala. After examining a few other small ruins, they journed by automobile and train to Guatemala City, where they spent a week receiving the congratulations of the Government officials and furthering the extensive Tulane program of co-operation with the republic.

WARRANT FOR HUSBAND OF WOMAN FOUND DEAD

New Eidence Reported Found by Private Detectives Against George Lenhardt.

A warrant for the arrest of George Lenhardt, whose wife was mysteriously shot to death near their home on Telegraph road the afternoon of Aug. 1, was issued at Clayton today.

Lenhardt was arrested after the finding of the body, but was released because of his statement that was elsewhere at the time of the killing, a statement which the county authorities could not disprove at the time. Private detectives, employed by the wife's relatives, have since obtained statements of neighbors to the effect that Lenhardt was seen about his home about the time when the killing is believed to have occurred.

The investigators believe they found also a motive for the killing, in statements of neighbors that another man had been seen about the place, one neighbor saying that the other man had visited the Lenhardt house on the day of the killing.

The Lenhardts, tenant farmers, lived near Oakville. Mrs. Lenhardt's body was found about 6 p. m., in a gully 400 yards from the farmhouse, with a bullet wound in the head. A revolver lay partly under the body, and the wound was powder-burned.

At the Coroner's inquest two days later, the husband was held, but his alibi caused his release Aug. 5. He said he had been at the home of his landlord, and later at the home of a neighbor, during the afternoon. It was believed that the killing occurred about 2:30 p. m., Mrs. Lenhardt having been seen by neighbors at 2.

After his release, the investigators now say, Lenhardt went home and burned a dress and a mattress. The investigators found marks and stains in the house, and broken articles of furniture, which convinced them that a struggle took place there.

VALENTINO AND SECOND WIFE HAVE AGREED TO SEPARATE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Rodolph Valentino, screen star, and his second wife, Winifred DeWolfe Hudnut Valentino, dancer, and daughter of a perfume manufacturer, have agreed to separate.

This wreck of one of Hollywood's romances was announced today by George Ellman, manager for Mrs. Valentino. "The separation is entirely friendly," Ellman said, "there being no idea of a divorce, and no agreement for allmony, but merely the desire of two artists to pursue their own talents in different directions.

Both will continue in motion picture work, Mrs. Valentino as a producer and he as a star for United Artists.

Mrs. Valentino came to New York on business last Monday. The separation agreement was signed in the Valentino home on Whitney Heights, Hollywood, the preceding Tuesday. They were married in Tia Juana in 1922.

TAXICAB AWAITS ROBBERS DURING HOLDUP AT HOTEL

Two armed holdup men used a taxicab in going to and from the Linmar Hotel, Washington boulevard and Vandeventer avenue, at 11 o'clock last night. They lined up the clerk, George Mitchell, a customer and a negro porter, behind the clerk's desk, and took $40 from the cash register. Those inside could not judge whether the taxicab driver had any knowledge of what his fares were doing in the hotel office.

Two men with revolvers, and with handkerchiefs over their chins, held up the manager, clerk and two customers in a drug store at 2400 Marcus avenue at 10:30 p. m., and made the manager, Samuel Wolff, open the safe, from which they took $300. They took $30 from the others. They departed in an automobile.

NEGRO GETS 60 DAYS IN JAIL FOR 'HOLDING FRIEND'S PISTOL'

Story Told by St. Louisan in East Side Court Carries No Weight With Judge.

Holding another man's revolver for him yesterday caused Ed Evans, St. Louis negro, to be sentenced to 60 days in the County jail at Belleville by Judge Weber. Evans was arrested in East St. Louis July 26 for carrying concealed weapons.

He told the officers when they arrested him the pistol belonged to a man he knew only as "Geese," and who had requested him to hold it while he stepped into a vacant lot. "Geese," he said, was given 30 days in jail on a vagrancy charge.

Judge Weber told Evans that his story had no weight and gave him 30 days. The negro said he has a wife and two children in St. Louis.

MAN IN AUTO COLLISION IS CAPTURED AFTER CHASE

A man, driving a Ford coupe west in Delmar boulevard on the wrong side of the street, collided with another automobile, eastbound, about 5:30 p. m., yesterday, and was arrested after a spectacular chase.

Traffic Officer Rather, at Kingshighway and Delmar boulevard, heard the crash, ran to the scene and climbed on the running board of the automobile which had been struck. It was driven by Thomas J. Brown of 3427A Williams place.

The driven of the coupe turned about and sped eastward to Euclid avenue, then turned south and west in Waterman avenue, with the car driven by Brown in pursuit. At Kingshighway, the policeman fired two shots in the direction of the fleeing car. A block further he fired two more shots. At Lake avenue the fugitive came to a halt, two of the tires having blown out.

The driver described himself as Richard Hughes, 24 years old, a clerk, living at 3750 Page boulevard. At city hospital, he was pronounced suffering from acute alcoholism. He was placed under arrest under the following charges: Leaving the scene of an accident, careless driving, failing to keep to the right-hand curb, speeding and operating an automobile while intoxicated.

ALLEGED COUNTERFEITERS HELD

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 20.—With the arrest here last night of Perry Copass, 23 years old, of Tompkinsville, Ky., and Ray Lucas, 23, Marion, O., Federal officials declare they have uncovered the source of spurious $10 and $20 bills, which had made their appearance in various parts of the United States recently.

The men, arrested in a raid on an apartment here, had in their possession four counterfeit bills and a complete bill-raising outfit. Federal officials said the men were traced here through a trail of worthless money which during the past month has centered in Central Ohio.

But purely a local muscular weakness, and in the average the condition readily responds to the principles utilized in the PLAPAO-MECHANICO-CHEMICO system—adapted to restore strength and tonicity to the affected muscles, to re-establish a normal condition at which time the rupture is no more.

BROWNS CUT ATHLETICS LEAD TO MARGIN OF THREE POINTS

Hectic Ninth Sees Mack Players Score Six Runs, Then Lose Game on Boots

Wild Throw by Rommel and Error by Dykes, Enable Browns to Tally Three Runs and Victory on One Hit — Twenty Visitors in Batting Order.

By Herman Wecke.

When the Philadelphia Athletics came to this city for a series with the Browns, the team was in first place by two games. But that margain has dwindled to a scant three percentage points, the result of two successive trimmings by the men of Sisler. In these two games the Mackmen have not played the same kind of baseball they did on previous visits to St. Louis.

There is nothing wrong with the punch of the team. In each clash the Athletics showed "come-back" abilities at the plate. But the pitching has not been what it should be, while in the second game the defense cracked badly and turned what looked like an apparent victory into defeat.

As a result, the Athletics will be fighting to retain their scant advantage over the world's champion Senators in the final here this afternoon, weather permitting. Rube Walberg, a left-hander, will without doubt start for Connie Mack. Joe Giard, whose last out resulted in a shut-out victory over the Indians, is the likely Brownie choice. The game will mark the final appearance of the Mackmen here this season.

One Big Inning Did It.

All the action in the second tilt was crowded into one frame—the hectic ninth. Taking their turn at bat, the Mackmen were four runs to the bad. Milton Gaston, prior to this round, had pitched great ball.

But then something happened. Athletic hits started falling where they could not be reached, while Gaston also became wild. The result was that before the side had been retired, Giard and Vangilder had been called into the game to halt the league leaders. When Miller was finally caught at the plate for the third out, the Philadelphians had put six runs over the pay-off station and were two tallies to the good.

Rommel's Error Hurt.

And then came the "breaks" of the game in favor of the Browns. "Slim" Harriss was Mack's fourth pitcher. Jacobson greeted him with a double. Then McManus walked and Harriss was on his way. Rommel coming to the hill. Bennett, the next batter, put down a bunt. Rommel handled it and then threw against the left-field pavilion, Jacobson scoring. Instead of a force-out, the Browns were but one run behind, had the tying run on third and the winning marker on second.

Hargrave went out on a fine play, Miller to Rommel on first, and McManus came over with the tying tally. Here it was decided to pass Robertson purposely. Following this, Tobin went up for Vangilder. He hit an easy roller to Dykes, who had moved to short. Clean handling would have held Bennett on third and retired Tobin.

Another Misplay Aids Browns.

But it was not to be so. Dykes missed that easy roller. It was the second "break" of the inning in favor of the home talent and as a result Bennett crossed the plate with the run that gave the Browns a 9 to 8 victory.

That rally of three runs by the Browns consisted of one hit, made by the first batter in the inning, two bases on balls, an infield out and two errors that were of great advantage to Sisler's men.

However, it is the way of baseball. Perhaps the Mackmen will come back and fight themselves to a greater advantage in the flag race. And then again, the two successive reverses at the Browns' hands, in which Mack's star hurlers have failed and his team's defense has cracked, may prove the start of the slump that will give the world's champion Senators a decided advantage.

Giants Are Only 2 Games Behind Leading Pirates

McGraw's Men Won While Corsairs Fell Before Dazzy Vance Yesterday.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Last year's big league champions are creeping up. Washington is only three points behind Philadelphia in the American League and the Giants are only two games behind the Pirates.

Pittsburg fell yesterday before unusually poor pitching on the part of the speed-ball monarch, Dazzy Vance, of Brooklyn, 8 to 7. It was Vance's eighteenth victory, and he must thank the sturdy bat of Cotton Tierney, former Pirate, for a resounding triple which gave the Dodgers the victory margin. Barnhart of the Pirates dealt blows which counted five Pittsburg runs, but they were insufficient.

John McGraw was compelled to use four pitchers to set back the Cubs, 7 to 6. Grover Alexander was driven out by the New York bats in the first two innings, and Bush finished well, but allowed the winning run.

The Phillies should be happy, for, although they appear to be going nowhere in the standing, they managed to defeat Pete Donohue of the Reds. Twenty times Donohue has trounced the men of Fletcher. Yesterday was the first time they defeated him since he entered the majors. Their 5-to-4 margin came through singles by San, Leach and Williams in the ninth.

Marberry to the Rescue.

Dutch Ruether, 20 hits and an excellent brand of relief pitching by Marberry, won the day for the world champion Senators, Cleveland proving a 12-to-8 victim. The Athletics succumbed to the Browns in a torrid battle, 9 to 8.

The White Sox, with Charley Robertson pitching and allowing five hits, defeated the Red Sox, 3 to 1, while Detroit took advantage of five Yankee errors to win, 4 to 3, although Herb Pennock permitted only six safeties.

"Dutch" Ruether helped Washington win from the Indians when he crashed out three hits, one of which was a four-bagger, with a man on base.

Third Baseman Hodapp, Indianapolis American Association star, joined the Indians, and cracked out two hits against the world's champions. One of the blows was a double.

Landis Will Act In Scandal Case

Southern Association President to Confer With Commissioner Saturday.

By the Associated Press.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 20.—Official investigation of published rumors of "scandal" was concluded late yesterday, after hours of quizzing the Nashville players behind closed doors, by John D. Martin, president of the Southern Association.

"It would be ill-advised to discuss the evidence taken until I have completed the investigation and then all the facts will be fully revealed," Martin said. "Such action will be taken to meet the situation to keep baseball absolutely good and square."

Martin said that Fred E. Eichrodt, former Nashville player on option contract from Cleveland, would be summoned by Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball commissioner, to appear at the commissioner's office for a medical examination Saturday.

Eichrodt was returned to Cleveland more than a week ago and now is undergoing treatment for an injured shoulder at Syracuse, N. Y. Martin also will be with Judge Landis at that time. Eichrodt was referred to by Martin as an "important witness" after the evidence had been heard from the players of the Nashville club. Ralph McGill, Nashville sport writer, whose newspaper article carried the rumors of an "impending scandal" and Nashville baseball association officials.

Martin will review the transcript of the records Friday and then will be prepared to go to Chicago for a conference with Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, Saturday.

Martin said that he would carry the complete evidence and his recommendations to Chicago and present to Commissioner Landis for his action, and also that he would take whatever action was needed within his jurisdiction in the scandal case.

"The investigation will be carried out with a court reporter just as regular court proceedings," Mr. Martin said later.

"I am going to place each witness under oath and provide a complete transcript of the entire proceedings and furnish this to Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, Baseball Commissioner.

"When a conclusion is reached I intend to act under organized baseball laws as is found just and necessary for the punishment of any offender."

Mr. Martin said that subpenas were issued for Ralph McGill, Nashville sport writer, who wrote the story containing the "rumors" and for all members of the Nashville ball team.

J. A. G. Sloan, president of the Nashville Baseball Association, and Jimmy Hamilton, team manager, also will meet with the President at the investigation.

Letters Submitted in Ruth's All-America Team Contest Lack Originality, in Many Instances

Some Contributors Have Even Gone So Far as to Copy Verbatim Those That Have Been Published as Samples—No Chance of Success for These.

Rules for Babe Ruth All-America Team Contest for 1925

ANY reader who mails to the Post-Dispatch between Aug. 9 and Aug. 31 an All-American team of 10 players (except Babe Ruth himself) in the American or National League for the season of 1925, with an original letter of not over 200 words, explaining the reason for picking each player for the position he occupies is eligible to compete. Any player on the rosters of the clubs of both National and American leagues may be named on the All-American selections, except Ruth, who is judge.

The reader whose team—two pitchers and eight men in other positions—is the same, or nearest Ruth's selections, and is accompanied by the best letter giving reasons for the selections, will be declared the winner.

The winning team must be named not alone as to players, but as to positions in conformity with Ruth's ideas.

Players MAY be placed in positions other than their regular places providing they have played in those places in at least one championship game in 1925.

Players must be selected on a basis of their playing in 1925, not on records made in previous seasons.

In case no team is exactly the same as that selected by Babe Ruth, the one nearest will be named the winner.

There will be suitable trophies, to be announced later, awarded to the winner, the runner-up and the third best selection and letter.

In case of ties, each person involved in the tie, will receive a trophy.

Contributors should take especial care with the 200-word letter as all other features coinciding, the merit of the letter will be the deciding factor.

In addition, Babe Ruth himself offers an autographed bat and an autographed ball for the man who picks his team or the one nearest it.

Late contributions to the Babe Ruth All-American team contest show a wider range of choice than the earlier ones, but, generally speaking, are still weak on the 200-word explanation. In some instances the writers frankly acknowledge a lack of originality by submitting almost verbatim reasons of other Post-Dispatch readers which have been published.

This type of explanation, figuratively and literally, will not "get to first base." If a reader has the ingenuity and the baseball knowledge to pick a fairly good all-star team, he certainly is qualified to tell why he picked it. If he isn't, the only conclusion left is that his choice is not original.

Most Reasons Original.

The majority of selections, however, are encouraging in the evident independence of opinion which the contributors manifest. Particularly in regard to pitchers are the later contributors going far afield to make their selections. In one earlier selections, "Dazzy" Vance and Walter Johnson were the choice of almost everyone, but Johnson has been displaced by Ed Rommel and Vance is beginning to totter on his throne, while Gray, Yde, Pennock, Sherdel, Ruether and others are coming to the fore.

Yde Gets a Place.

E. R. Ames, 4735 Cupples place, passes over Vance and several other favorites in making his selection. Here is his team:

Sisler, Browns, first base.
Sewell, Indians, shortstop.
Bluege, Senators, third base.
Combs, Yankees, left field.
Heilmann, Tigers, right field.
Yde, Pirates, pitcher.

Rice Gains Recognition.

Bottomley, Cardinals, first base.
Wright, Pirates, shortstop.
Frisch, Giants, third base.
Rice, Browns, right field.
Gray, Athletics, pitcher.
Vance, Brooklyn, pitcher.

Again attention is called to the importance of the 200-word explanation which must accompany each selection. This part of the contribution will decide your place in the contest in case several readers choose identically the players which Babe Ruth will select. Such a condition probably will arise because of the volume of contributions which have been mailed in.

Ruth, in making his choice, will be aided by suggestions from sport editors and baseball writers from all over the country. On the basis of these and from his own opinion, the slugger will choose his all-star team.

Argentine Owner Pays Record Price for Mon Talisman

By the Associated Press.

DEAUVILLE, France, Aug. 20.—The record price for France of 570,000 francs was paid yesterday by the Argentine, Martinez de Hoz, for Mon Talisman, by Craig an Eran, winner of the 2000 guineas stake and second in the Epsom Derby in 1921—to the Guillermoham stable.

Senor De Hoz also purchased from the same owner for 400,000 francs La Plata, by Spion Kop—winner of the Derby—out of Bayling.

Fitzsimmons to Meet Mullins

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Floyd Fitzsimmons of Michigan City telegraphed Paddy Mullins yesterday that he would be here Saturday with $100,000 in his jeans, the same being his guarantee for Harry Wills if the Brown Panther will agree to meet Jack Dempsey for him.

Of course, this statement rather complicates matters, following as it does the posting of forfeits by Jack Kearns and Tex Rickard for a Dempsey and Wills bout in this or a nearby town.

Paddy has given his word to string with the Chicago man—if the latter will deliver. He has signed an agreement to boot and Paddy won't break either the given or written promise to go along with the Western man—if Fitz can make good.

Just what his standing and Wills' will be if he deals outside of New York and the Commission, remains to be seen.

Dempsey is determined that he will not fight here nor will he fight for Kearns. He has no grouch against Rickard and can hardly censure him for dealing with Kearns. Rickard had no other road to travel.

Fitzsimmons and his $100,000 guarantee for Wills will certainly act as a monkey wrench in the commission's present plan to make Dempsey show his colors here.

154 Swimmers To Compete in Municipal Meet

Matilda Sakowski and Mabel Le Clerq of Coach Johnson's team are regarded as strong contenders for title honors in the women's fancy diving competition, while Justine Mest and Gertrude Lee are picked to star in the 100 yard events for women.

Norton Reaches Semifinal Round

St .Louis Tennis Star to Play Griffin in Newport Tourney Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 20.—William M. Johnston of San Francisco and Manuel Alonso of Spain will be the semifinalists in the upper bracket in the ninth annual Newport invitation tennis tournament as a result of today's matches. In the lower bracket, B. I. C. Norton of St. Louis and Clarence J. Griffin of San Francisco reached the semifinal round.

WHITE SOX PURCHASE TWO W. A. PITCHERS

CHICAGO, Aug. 20. — The White Sox last week concluded a deal that was considered one of the best of the season for any club. This transaction involved James E. (Ginger) Carroll, a right-handed slabber with the Muskogee (Ok.) club.

Carroll is 20 years of age, towers 6 feet 2 inches and tips the scale at 187 pounds. At this stage of the race Carroll has a pitching record of 13 victories as against seven defeats.

Probably the most exceptional feature of Carroll's toil this season is his fondness for dumping over the other fellows on strikes. In slightly better than the 200 innings he has pitched, he has fanned one batter an inning, or approximately that. The opposition has averaged three runs a game off him and his base on balls average has been about the same.

The Sox were forced to hand over a roll of $9000 to the Muskogee club.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Words Are Smoke.

WILLIE BUFF, for nine years an "amateur" boxer, member of two Olympic teams, complained that his name had been used as a principal in connection with a St. Louis amateur bout when, as a matter of fact, he was never in St. Louis.

This semed to make a case against the local promoters, when photos of Willie Buff could NOT be identified as the opponent of Jack Horner in the local contest referred to.

Somebody, NOT Buff, did box under his name.

Developments, however, tend to show that the Business Men's Athletic Association's skirts are altogether clean and that something was put over on them—they were "Chicagoed" to revive an old word.

• • •

Laugh This Off, Willie.

THE real blame now is falling where it seems to belong—on the shoulders of Buff, who admits that he demanded $55 additional "expenses" over and above hotel and railroad bills to box in this city.

Buff wired the Post-Dispatch that he had been barred by the secretary of the A. A. U. from going abroad with an American boxing team on Sept. 6, because of the "defeat" charged against his name in St. Louis.

Alas, for Old Man Veracity, Willie knocked him completely out. Secretary Rubien, answering a telegram from the Post-Dispatch, said he "knew nothing about any American boxing team going abroad Sept. 6, and had sent no communication whatever on any subject to Buff."

A telegram to Buff asking for a copy of the message he said he had received, failed to bring forth an answer.

It did have this effect: To prove that, if any offense against amateur propriety was committed in this city, it originated in Chicago and not in St. Louis.

Time to Investigate.

THE A. A. U. takes too much for granted as to the "amateur" boxing game. It assumes that the statements of the boxers are correct. It certainly does not seem to probe them very far.

Take the case of Buff, who has been an amateur for NINE years. He admits having fought 250 AMATEUR fights; yet he has stationery with his name and fighting picture on it and has a professional manager.

If that doesn't indicate a desire to do business on a business basis, you try guessing what it does mean.

On top of that we have his letter admitting that he made what apparently is a professional demand for $55 above the normal expenses, to show in this city.

If the amateur boxing game is too tough for the A. A. U. to handle, it ought to drop it. And it certainly does appear as if this sport was "too hot to handle."

Hard to Go Straight.

When our boys went East on several occasions they drew the applause of fans and the commendation of critics for their fine bearing and manly methods.

But now they are slipping. The amateurs are being taught by professionals; and professional tricks and cheating methods are showing up. One coach who had been praised for the clean work of his boys in the past has been sending his men into the ring to fight foul "if the other fellow does!"

As if two wrongs make a right! The recourse is an appeal to the referee to stop the other fellow.

Referees here have not had to disqualify amateurs in the past. But it is perfectly apparent that if the standard of clean boxing set here in the past is to be maintained, a wholesale throwing out of "amateurs" whenever they violate rules must be resorted to.

If we are to have amateur sports, by all means let them be AMATEUR, and not cheap imitations of a fourth-rate professional brawl.

Of the St. Louis Archery Team.

ROME, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Dr. Paul W. Crouch of Boston continued his remarkable archery performances during the second day of the forty-fifth annual tournament of the National Archery Association of the United States by breaking the world's tournament record for this round.

Dr. Crouch, a young man of powerful build, shooting a bow with a draw exceeding 50 pounds, made 90 hits for a score of 626 in this round. Thirty arrows are shot at 60, 50 and 40 yards, respectively. Dr. Crouch's shooting was equivalent to averaging all hits in a circle less than 20 inches in diameter.

The women's championship was decided yesterday. Miss Dorothy Smith, Boston, Mass., a senior at Boston University, winning the title for the fifth time. Miss Stella Ives also of Boston, won the women's wand shoot, hitting the wand, a lath 2 inches wide and six feet high, four times in 12 shots at 50 yards.

Tilden Picks Australians to Beat Japanese in Cup Contests

By William T. Tilden II.

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—Japan, fresh from an unexpected victory over Spain, meets Australia in the final round of the American Davis Cup zone matches at Longwood Cricket Club, starting today.

The schedule calls for G. L. Patterson of Australia to play Zenzo Shimizu of Japan at 3 o'clock, and for J. O. Anderson of Australia to meet Takeichi Harada.

TILDEN

Friday Harada and Shimizu will represent Japan in the doubles, but the Australian team is not yet named.

On Saturday Anderson plays Shimizu in the opening match and Patterson plays Harada in in the final tie.

I cannot say that I think Japan has a chance, yet in view of their wonderful victory over Spain, when Harada beat Manuel Alonso, one cannot be too certain. I believe that both Patterson and Anderson sure are to defeat Shimizu and that Australia will win the doubles, which assures them of victory, even if Harada should be able to win his singles. I hardly look to see him do better than nose out one match, if that.

It looks like a 4—1 or 5—0 win for Australia. The courts are in magnificent condition, hard, fast and true, which should insure hard tennis. The weather is hot, but clear and with a nice breeze. I believe that Patterson will win in three sets from Shimizu. Although the little Japanese may win one, Harada should take at least one set if not two from Anderson. The tall Australian is playing under a heavy strain, owing to the death of his mother, the news of which just reached him by cable. Naturally the shock has made him less concentrated on his play than he otherwise would have been. The doubles should prove a walk over for the Australians with their tremendous, hot attack.

MISS WILLS PLAYS 19-YEAR-OLD ENGLISH GIRL IN FOURTH ROUND MATCH

Miss Ryan Meets Miss McKane in Another Feature

By the Associated Press.

FOREST HILLS, Aug. 20.—Favored by the luck of the draw which placed her in one half of the tourney with three of her outstanding rivals in the other half, Miss Helen Wills, national tennis champion, has only two more obstacles in her way to the final round of the title tournament now in progress at the West Side Tennis Club.

While the young Californian title holder faces a formidable opponent today in Miss Joan Fry, 19-year-old English girl, the two women who rank as the outstanding title contenders will fight it out in the feature match of the quarter finals. The opponents in this are Miss Elizabeth Ryan, California, who has come back from England in quest of more laurels and Miss Kathleen McKane, ranking British ace.

Miss Ryan, probably the greatest strategist in the tournament is favored to win but Miss McKane may come through if she continues the sensational playing that enabled her to vanquish Mrs. Marion Jessup, fifth ranking American player yesterday in two love sets.

Miss Wills is Favored.

Miss Wills, though she defeated Miss Fry last week in the Wightman cup matches, may have more difficulty this time with her young rival who played brilliantly to put out Miss Mary K. Brown, second in the national ranking, in three sets.

In the other singles matches, Mrs. Molla Mallory is opposed to Miss Penelope Anderson of Richmond, Va., who scored an international victory of Miss Evelyn Colyer, of England, while Miss Eleanor Goss of New York faces the veteran British player, Mrs. Lambert Chambers.

England suffered an unexpected setback yesterday when Miss Colyer was beaten in straight sets by a young American, Miss Anderson, 7—5, 7—5, but the invading forces offset this with two triumphs that proved the sensation of the third day's play.

Two Unexpected Triumphs.

The first of these was scored by Miss Fry, who came from behind to conquer Miss Mary K. Browne, No. 2 American ranking star, 2—6, 6—4, 6—3, while in the other, Miss McKane, flashed the most brilliant tennis of the tournament so far in overwhelming Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup, fifth American ranking player, 6—0, 6—0.

Miss Ryan, whose windup service and chop strokes eliminated the second British player, Miss E. H. Harvey, 6—0, 6—3, is favored to conquer Miss McKane, but she will have her hands full if the British ace continues her spectacular play.

Miss McKane gave a dazzling exhibition of court covering and accurate placing. She smothered Mrs. Jessup, taking the first set in 11 minutes with the loss of only five points and sweeping aside all her opponent's attempts to rally in the second set to end the match in 24 minutes. In her three tournament victories so far Miss McKane has dropped only three games in six sets.

Mrs. Bundy Eliminated.

In her triumph over Miss Browne, Miss Fry showed great improvement over her fosing matches last week in the Wightman Cup series. The tall, stalwart English girl literally ran Miss Browne into defeat after losing the first set and trailing at 0—3 in the second. She aced her American opponent repeatedly in the last two sets with whistling forehand and backhand drives.

Miss Wills advanced at the expense of the veteran former champion, Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, 6—3, 6—2. Mrs. Bundy tired after winning three of the first four games and was an easy victim for the young titleholder's hard hitting.

Doubles play also advanced to the fourth round, with two teams, McKane-Colyer and Wills-Browne, standing out as the favorites in the quest for the title won last year by Miss Wills and Mrs. George W. Wightman of Boston. These rival international combinations each won two matches, advancing along with the Jessup-Goss, Ryan-Bundy and Chambers-Harvey combinations.

Held Shoots 75 For 18 Holes in Western 'Open'

Watrons, Nall and Gullickson Lead Early Finishers With 70.

By the Associated Press

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 20.—Good scores were made today by many of the 261 contestants in the first qualifying round of the Western open golf championship at the Youngstown Country Club, several breaking through par on the difficult 6500-yard course. The field was so large that the late starters faced the problem of finishing by starlight, while many of the first ones on the list had to begin their rounds at dawn, while dew made the grass heavy.

With half of the field still out, the best score was 70, one under par. This figure was shared by Al Watrous of Grand Rapids, Parker Nall of Urbana, Ill., and Lloyd Gullickson of Columbus, O.

The leading amateur was Joe Wells of East Liverpool, O., who had par 71. There were many scores of 72, including H. C. Hagerblade of Bristol, Conn.; Peter Henry of Philadelphia, Harry Hampton of Memphis, Lee Diegel of New York, Canadian open champion, and James Foulis of Chicago.

Held Shoots a 75.

Eddie Held of St. Louis might as well have thrown away his putter for he could not use it effectively, taking 75 strokes, but still having a good chance to qualify as a total of 150 strokes for today's and tomorrow's round apparently would get the owner into the 64 who will play 36 holes on Saturday.

Low Score at Oakmont 6 Years Ago, May Not Qualify in 1925

Predictions for This Year's National Amateur Championship Are That a Card of 155 Strokes Will Be on the Ragged Edge of the Qualifying Line.

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1925.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—As showing how partners in the game of golf is developing, it may be pointed out that whereas a score of 158 was low in the qualifying round of the amateur championship at Oakmont six years ago, it is extremely unlikely that such a score will even qualitfy this year when some forty star players struggle for honors over this course.

With only 16 qualifying this year it is the belief of close followers of amateur golf that 155 will be pretty much the ragged edge. Indeed, if conditions are favorable, the qualifying mark may range several shots below this.

One thing is certain. None but a golfer of real hitting and shotmaking ability will win at Oakmont. There are a number of holes calling for long difficult second shots and the player who can negotiate these successfully is going to meet with success there. The greens are large and undulating so that good putters also will be favored.

Oakmont has been tightened somewhat since the last amateur was played there. The erratic player will be in a bad way for when a ball lodges in one of those furrowed traps, the player will pay the penalty of one stroke at least. No one can get any distance in recovering from these traps.

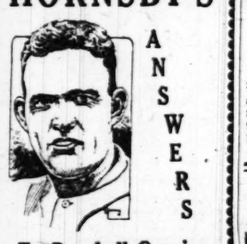

And so the qualifying rounds of Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 31 and Sept. 1, will offer a strain to the great majority of contestants. One poor hole and their trip to Pittsburg will have been in vain, so far as the chance of winning any title is concerned.

HORNSBY'S ANSWERS To Baseball Queries

(1) What is a passed ball? (2) Bases full, one out. Batter hits a home run but fails to touch third and is retired. Do the other runs count?—A FAN.

(1) A passed ball is a pitched ball that the catcher should hold with ordinary effort, but misses, permitting a baserunner to advance or the batter to get to first base.

(2) Yes.

Bases full. Batter hits pop fly to shortstop, who loses it in the sun. Umpire calls batter out for hitting an infield fly. Was he right?—H. N.

If there were none or only one out the infield fly rule applied and the batter was out, as the umpire ruled. If there were two out it was not an infield fly, merely a muffed fly, and there was a force at every base.

Runners on first and second, one out. Batter bunts along third base line. Who should field the bunt and who should cover third?—W. T. R.

Depends on the nature of the bunt and the abilities of the individual players. Ordinarily the pitcher should field the ball, but if the bunt were short, perhaps the catcher could get it, better. The third baseman should cover third.

Runners on first and second. Batter hits fly to center field. Runners hold bases. Fielder misses fly and throws to second base. Baseman tags second and then throws to third baseman, who touches his base. Umpire calls both runners out. Is this the proper decision?—READER, Woodville, Mo.

The runner on first was out on a force at second but the runner on second was not forced at third. He was entitled to hold second base. When the center fielder dropped the fly there was a force at third but the putout at second destroyed it.

Runner on first. Two out. Batter hits fly to center fielder, who drops it. Runner reaches home and batter third. Second baseman calls for ball and tags second, retiring batter who failed to touch the bag. Does the run count?—XXX.

Yes.

ST. LOUISANS RECALL MARQUISE DE JANELLI

Defendant in Chicago Action Sister of Woman Who Sued H. C. G. Luyties.

There was a St. Louis chapter, a few years ago, in the life of the Marquise de Janelli, widow of a former Italian Ambassador to Japan. The $1,000,000 slander suit of a Chicago grocery clerk, H. J. Brennan, against the Marquise, has recently attracted renewed attention to this handsome and cosmopolitan person, who was Della Reese, daughter of the City Marshal of Duquoin, Ill.

The St. Louis chapter, however, was of more importance in the life of the Marquise's sister, Mrs. Kathleen E. Gowdy, than in the life of the titled woman herself. The Marquise merely appeared as her sister's companion and spokeswoman in the St. Louis incident, which was Mrs. Gowdy's $250,000 breach of promise suit against the late Herman C. G. Luyties, chemical manufacturer.

Kate and Della Reese were the pretty daughters of Capt. Lycurgus Reese of Duquoin, a Civil War veteran, by his second marriage. He did not become wealthy in the course of his career as local politician and City Marshal, but he left a farm and some town property. The girls were educated in a finishing school near New York City.

Suit Against Luyties Recalled.

Kate, or Kathleen, married H. A. Gowdy of Minneapolis. They separated, and in 1915, after she had become a widow, Mrs. Gowdy filed her breach of promise suit against Luyties. She alleged that he had been betrothed to her, and that she had lived at his residence in Portland place.

The Marquise de Janelli, after the filing of the suit, made statements on her sister's behalf, and told how she had herself lived at the Luyties residence two weeks, while her sister was there, but left when she became dissatisfied with Luyties' attitude toward her sister.

Luyties settled Mrs. Gowdy's suit out of the court, and said at the time that he paid her $1500. At the time of his death, four years ago, Luyties was engaged to a young woman, and his will provided for a young son born out of wedlock, the son of another young woman, who later married. Luyties' wife had divorced him before these incidents occurred.

Della Reese, the younger of the sisters, was employed for a time by Cook's Tourist Agency, and while in Europe on work connected with this employment, she met the Italian diplomat whom she married. They lived first in China and later in Japan.

Marquise Now Being Sued.

As told in a Chicago dispatch recently, the Marquise, who is now 42 years old, is being sued on an allegation of false arrest. Brennan said he met the Marquise in the City of Mexico, while he was engaged in the advertising business there, and he says they became well acquainted. Lately he has been working in a Chicago grocery for $25 a week, but he attended a party at which the Marquise was present. After the party, he charges, she accused him of having stolen jewelry and other articles worth $2500 from her. Brennan says he was coerced into signing, in the presence of policemen, an agreement to pay the Marquise $1100 at the rate of $10 a week, from his salary.

The dispatch spoke of the Marquise as having lived in Chicago since February "with her sister, Mrs. Alexander Mosley." While Mrs. Gowdy's suit against Luyties was pending here it developed that Mrs. Gowdy was also known as Mrs. Mosley, of Mosely. A suit was brought against her here in that name.

Robert Reese, a brother of the two women, was killed by a policeman in Duquoin 10 years ago. Their mother, Mrs. Emma Reese, was charged with complicity in mistreatment of a 14-year-old girl in her home, in 1917, and was at one time under a penitentiary sentence in connection with the case.

Of course they do. That is what they bought them for—to use them. There are over two thousand used cars turned in every month in St. Louis, as part payment on new automobiles. Many of these you admire and would be just the cars you would like. Conditions have changed with the owners; their cars are too large or too small, or a closed car is desired. So they are turned in on new cars. We have over one hundred good used cars ready to go and give good satisfactory service. You may drive any one of them for five days and if you are not pleased, all you have paid will be applied on any other car in stock, new or used. Our fourteen years of honorable dealing is your warranty. We give a few below from the list we know will please you.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

P. D.—April 27, 1907, fell on a Saturday.

FRANK W.—According to the 1910 rank of cities St. Louis was fourth in the United States; the census of 1920 puts St. Louis in sixth place according to population.

B. B. B. — The composition of butter, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is 83 per cent fat, 13 per cent water, 3 per cent ash, 1 per cent protein.

CONSTANT READER OF P. D. —Following is a recipe for stuffed green peppers: 6 green peppers, 1 finely chopped onion, 2 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons chopped mushrooms, 1-3 cup brown sauce, 3 tablespoons bread crumbs, salt and pepper, buttered bread crumbs, 4 tablespoons of lean raw ham which is finely chopped. Cut a slice from the stem end of each pepper, remove the seeds, and parboil the peppers for 15 minutes. Cook the onion in butter for three minutes, add the mushrooms and ham and cook one minute, then add the brown sauce and bread crumbs. Cool the mixture, sprinkle the peppers with salt, fill with the cooked mixture, cover with buttered bread crumbs and bake 10 minutes. Serve on toast with brown sauce. Brown sauce is made of 2 tablespoons butter, ½ slice onion, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 cup brown stock, ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Cook the onion in the butter until it is slightly browned, remove the onion and stir the butter until it is well browned, then add the flour mixed with seasonings, and brown the butter and flour; then add the stock gradually, bring to the boiling point and boil for two minutes. Green peppers may also be stuffed with equal parts of finely chopped cold cooked chicken or veal and softened bread crumbs seasoned with onion juice, salt and pepper.

V. G. A.—Following is a recipe for vanilla ice cream: 2 cups scalded milk, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1 quart thin cream, 2 tablespoons vanilla. Mix the flour, sugar and salt, add the egg slighty beaten, then add the milk gradually; cook over hot water for 20 minutes, stirring constantly at first. If the custard should have a curdled appearance, it will disappear in freezing. When cool, add the cream and flavoring, strain and freeze. Allow three level measures of ice to one of salt, as these are found to be the best proportions of ice and salt to insure smooth, fine-grained cream, sherbet or water ice, while equal parts of salt and ice are used for freezing frappe. If a larger proportion of salt is used the mixture will freeze in shorter time and be of granular consistency, which is desirable only for frappe. The mixture increases in bulk during freezing, so the can should never be more than three-fourths filled, as the cream will be coarse-grained if the can is over-crowded. Never draw off the salt water until the mixture is frozen unless there is a possibility of its getting into the can, for salt water is what effects freezing and until the ice melts there will be no change in the cream. Add more ice and salt if it is needed. After the freezing is accomplished, draw off the water, remove the dasher, pack solidly with a spoon, put a cork in the opening of the cover, put on the cover, and re-pack the freezer, using four measures of ice to one of salt.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

O. C. V.—A coal driver has not the right of way in heavy traffic.

MRS. J. — A bill becomes outlawed in five years if no payments are made in that time.

JOHN B.—Some Government positions are open to aliens, but most are not.

GEORGE E.—You can raise the level of your land or use any other practicable means to repel the surface water.

THANKS. — B should consult a lawyer regarding the property.

A. B. — The tenant must pay rent for the 30 days' notice period.

PERPLEXED.—It is not necessary to report a slight automobile accident where no one is injured and the damage is very small.

CARROLL. — Even though your wife, who is in Europe, does not answer your letters you cannot marry another girl unless you get a divorce first.

X. Y. C.—A high school teacher may have employment outside of school hours, provided such work does not interfere with his school teaching.

BLUE SKY.—The conditions for a "Blue Sky" permit are the same for both foreign and domestic corporations. Write to the State Finance Commissioner, Jefferson City, Mo., for full information.

A READER.—Inquire at the Immigration office in the Old Custom House, Third and Olive streets, for full information regarding the entrance of the man from Germany.

OBLIGE.—It is against the law to make "home brew" for personal use. Report the facts to the prohibition enforcement office in the Custom House, Eighth and Olive streets.

MRS. CHAS. A. H. — If your brother left no will your nieces and nephew will receive their mother's share of his estate and no more. Under the circumstances the father cannot take the boy from his grandmother, since she has supported him since he was a baby.

M.—Inquire at the Circuit Attorney's office in the Municipal Courts building with regard to the prosecution of your husband. You can also sue for separate maintenance or for a divorce and alimony, whichever you prefer. Consult a lawyer regarding this. In any case your husband can be required to support his child.

L. X. X.—If the correspondence school misrepresented the course to you, you will have a good defense if they sue you. If they got a judgment they could garnish your wages, as you are single, and could also make you pay the court costs. If they sue you, consult the Legal Aid Bureau in the Municipal Courts Building, Fourteenth and Market streets.

30-YEAR READER.—You cannot convey a clear title to any real estate you own unless your husband signs the deed also. If you buy real estate he will not have to sign anything unless you put a deed of trust on it, in which case he will have to sign the deed of trust. There is no reason why you should not have the title in your own name alone, as you are paying for it.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Aug. 20.—Profit taking brought a lower close to wheat after early upturn. Low temperatures in part of Canada and report of frost brought some early buying. Disappointing export situation in wheat and beneficial rain in corn country were late factors.

In the local cash grain market soft wheat was 2c to 3c higher. Receipts were light. There was good mill demand for the better grades. Hard was 1c higher. Demand was fair. Corn was ½c to 2c lower. Demand was fair. Oats were steady to 1c higher. Demand was fair.

Buoyant Liverpool market, prices there closing 1¼d to 1⅝d higher and strength of Minneapolis where mills were reported buying were eary influences in the wheat market. Kansas City wheat above Chicago price was commented upon. Corn prices here also were up early.

September wheat opened at $1.63¾, December wheat $1.62¾, May wheat $1.65½. September corn $1.05¼, December corn 87⅝c.

CHICAGO WHEAT CLOSES LOWER AFTER EARLY RISE

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Wheat averaged higher through the greater part of the session today, but with no little difficulty. On the flurries there was profit taking, while support was active only on the reactions. However, there was little desire to press the short side, and the same undercurrent of strength in evidence the last few days gradually made its appearance.

Profit taking eased wheat trade and the close was ½c to ¾c lower; September, $1.59⅜ to $1.59⅝; December, $1.59⅝; May, $1.62⅝ to $1.62¾. Corn closed 1⅛c to 1⅜c lower; September, $1.03⅞ to $1.04⅛; December, 87¼c to 87⅜c; May, 89⅝c. Oats were unchanged to ¼c lower; September, 40⅝c to 40½c; December, 43⅝c; May, 47⅜c to 47½c. Lard closed unchanged to 2½c lower, ribs 30c lower. Local cash sales, 45,000 bushels wheat, 50,000 corn and 100 bushels oats. The seaboard reported 200,000 bushels wheat and 200,000 bushels oats for export.

Eastern buying of futures was not so active this morning, but enough support developed to turn prices up repeatedly. There was selling here against purchases at Winnipeg, the latter part being inclined toward easiness early. Liverpool closed 1¼ to 1⅝ pence higher for the day. Speculative demand was broader there. Late cables had it that Russia had sold wheat to Italy.

Export demand for wheat for overnight showed moderate improvement. The demand seems to be mostly for nearby wheat. Minneapolis was relatively strong early. Mills with terminal and country connections were active on the buying side of the market during the first hour of trade. The movement of wheat to market in this country remains moderate, and reports have it that the farmer in the Northwest intends holding back like the winter producer has done this season.

Corn averaged higher in the early session, but gradually receded under profit-taking. On the dips good buying through commission houses made its appearance, and rallies were frequent. The demand for cash corn was less active with the spot basis ¼c lower. Country offerings were moderate.

Oats averaged higher. The country is selling less crop grain and hedging pressure the last few sessions has been on the wane. The commercial demand for oats has improved. Also export inquiry. The seaboard reported export sales of 200,000 bushels oats overnight.

Provisions firmed at the outset as investment buying through commission houses entered the pit, but locals sold the market off later. Some betterment in the export demand for lard is noted.

PRICES MIXED IN MODERATE STOCK TRADE

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial review today says:

"After considerable unsettlement around midday, security prices resumed their upward trend in moderately active trading, prices closing at somewhat higher levels. The market was not altogether one-sided, however, and new high records in several favorites were accompanied by renewed selling in other parts of the list. Uneven fluctuations made it seem more apparent that traders in large numbers were preparing for an expected technical reaction. Hesitation on the part of any of the favorites which seemed top-heavy was followed by rather general profit-taking and short selling. Call money continued plentiful at 4 per cent. The bond market received encouragement from the quick sale of the $25,000,000 new International Telephone issue and the subsequent advance of 2 points in the bonds on the Stock Exchange. Utility issues were in better demand, while Government bonds rallied steadily.

Stocks Rebound After Drop.

"Another effort to depress prices of active leaders and check the forward movement of the general list met with little success, although heavy selling for a time induced profit-taking in several favorites which had enjoyed substantial advances. Mack Trucks, White Motors, General Electric and several others fell back sharply for a time, but demand for stocks quickly revived and a steady recovery set in. In the main selected industrials and rails continued the movement begun more than a week ago. Southern Railway pushed forward to a record high figure, while Havana Electric soared to a new top and American Smelting reached the best levels in eight years. Kennecott Copper established a new high for the year in reflecting anticipation of an increased dividend. American Express continued in demand, while Westinghouse Air Brake received support. Chandler was among the weak issues, however, falling to within a point of its record low level.

Recovery in Oils.

"One of the surprising developments of the day's mixed trading was the recovery in oil shares under the leadership of Pan-American issues, which were up about 5 points from the recent low. This movement gained momentum despite further evidence of unsettlement in the gasoline industry, in which further price cuts were announced. Standard Oil of New Jersey and Marland ruled strong, while several speculative issues were pushed forward. Texas Gulf Sulphur dropped back somewhat despite the fact that directors announced an increase in the annual dividend rate from $7 to $8. Talk of dividend payments on U. S. Cast Iron Pipe common was revived to explain the rise in this stock to the highest point since the break of several months ago. National Lead's steady climb was attributed to buying for the company's account preliminary to an offering of shares to employes at $150 a share.

Foreign Exchanges Active.

"A generally steady tone prevailed in active trading in foreign exchanges. A large amount of cotton bills came into the market but demand was good and rates on London ruled strong, sterling moving forward fractionally. Although the weekly Bank of France statement contained rather favorable features, rates on Paris eased off somewhat. Belgian francs were lower. Lire continued in demand, however, and Scandinavian remittances were strong. Failure of the Bank of England to make another reduction in the bank rate caused no surprise in well-informed circles. The bank's weekly statement revealed a further advance in the reserve ratio.

Commodity Markets Quiet.

"Commodity markets again attracted little attention. Cotton prices moved within narrow limits, an early reaction of 5 to 9 points failing to stimulate demand. Thereafter trading was at a standstill and the close was a trifle lower. Wheat moved higher at the start, but buying orders were quickly filled and with an increase in offerings values slipped back. Active months closed fractionally lower. Early strength in corn was also lost and the close found prices down about a cent a bushel.

PRICES MIXED IN MODERATE STOCK TRADE

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial review today says:

"After considerable unsettlement around midday, security prices resumed their upward trend in moderately active trading, prices closing at somewhat higher levels. The market was not altogether one-sided, however, and new high records in several favorites were accompanied by renewed selling in other parts of the list. Uneven fluctuations made it seem more apparent that traders in large numbers were preparing for an expected technical reaction. Hesitation on the part of any of the favorites which seemed top-heavy was followed by rather general profit-taking and short selling. Call money continued plentiful at 4 per cent. The bond market received encouragement from the quick sale of the $25,000,000 new International Telephone issue and the subsequent advance of 3 points in the bonds on the Stock Exchange. Utility issues were in better demand, while Government bonds rallied steadily.

Stocks Rebound After Drop.

"Another effort to depress prices of active leaders and check the forward movement of the general list met with little success, although heavy selling for a time induced profit-taking in several favorites which had enjoyed substantial advances. Mack Trucks, White Motors, General Electric and several others fell back sharply for a time, but demand for stocks quickly revived and a steady recovery set in. In the main selected industrials and rails continued the movement begun more than a week ago. Southern Railway pushed forward to a record high figure, while Havana Electric soared to a new top and American Smelting reached the best levels in eight years. Kennecott Copper established a new high for the year in reflecting anticipation of an increased dividend. American Express continued in demand, while Westinghouse Air Brake received support. Chandler was among the weak issues, however, falling to within a point of its record low level.

• • •

Recovery in Oils.

"One of the surprising developments of the day's mixed trading was the recovery in oil shares under the leadership of Pan-American issues, which were up about 5 points from the recent low. This movement gained momentum despite further evidence of unsettlement in the gasoline industry, in which further price cuts were announced. Standard Oil of New Jersey and Marland ruled strong, while several speculative issues were pushed forward. Texas Gulf Sulphur dropped back somewhat despite the fact that directors announced an increase in the annual dividend rate from $7 to $8. Talk of dividend payments on U. S. Cast Iron Pipe common was revived to explain the rise in this stock to the highest point since the break of several months ago. National Lead's steady climb was attributed to buying for the company's account preliminary to an offering of shares to employes at $150 a share.

Foreign Exchanges Active.

"A generally steady tone prevailed in active trading in foreign exchanges. A large amount of cotton bills came into the market but demand was good and rates on London ruled strong, sterling moving forward fractionally. Although the weekly Bank of France statement contained rather favorable features, rates on Paris eased off somewhat. Belgian francs were lower. Lire continued in demand, however, and Scandinavian remittances were strong. Failure of the Bank of England to make another reduction in the bank rate caused no surprise in well-informed circles. The bank's weekly statement revealed a further advance in the reserve ratio.

• • •

Commodity Markets Quiet.

"Commodity markets again attracted little attention. Cotton prices moved within narrow limits, an early reaction of 5 to 9 points failing to stimulate demand. Thereafter trading was at a standstill and the close was a trifle lower. Wheat moved higher at the start, but buying orders were quickly filled and with an increase in offerings values slipped back. Active months closed fractionally lower. Early strength in corn was also lost and the close found prices down about a cent a bushel.

OIL SHARES DO BETTER ON NEW YORK CURB

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Oil stocks absorbed a good deal of speculative interest in the operations on the curb exchange today. This class of stocks had showed signs of recovery late Wednesday and the improvement was extended today following the estimates of the American Petroleum Institute which disclosed a falling off of 21,450 barrels daily on domestic crude output during the week ended Aug. 15.

Magnolia Pete at 140 compared with the previous final of 138⅛ and buying came into the market for Standard of New York and Humble. It was evident that a good deal of the buying represented covering of short contracts but at the same time some new committments were being made on the long side on belief that the oils were now coming into their own.

Moto Meter, a recent addition to the list, attracted attention when it went into higher ground to 40½ where it compared with 38½, the figure at which it was offered for public subscription. The result appeared to be due to the fact that selling which had been coming from people who had subscribed with the intention of taking a quick profit had now been completed and the way was open for higher prices.

The market for public utilities did little either way but Western Power was an exception and was bid up three points when it sold at 66½.

With the copper metal now firmly established at 14⅝c a pound copper stocks were disposed to go higher. The selling was again ascribed to special causes.

Lead, Zinc and Copper

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Copper, firm; electrolytic spot and future, 14⅝c. Tin, steady, spot and nearby, $57.75; futures, $57.50. Iron steady, prices unchanged. Lead firm, spot, $9.40@10.00. Zinc firm, East St. Louis, spot and futures, $7.65. Antimony, spot, $17.75@18.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—Standard copper, spot, £63 2s 6d; futures, £64. Electrolytic, spot, £69; futures, £69 5s. Tin, spot, £257; futures, £259 15s. Lead, spot, £38 17s 6d; futures, £37 2s 6d. Zinc, spot, £36 17s 6d; futures, £36 7s 6d.

Turpentine, Flax, Linseed

Linseed oil in lots of 1 to 4 barrel; New, $1.14 per gallon for raw and $1.17 for boiled.

DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 20.—Bidding with light offerings and firm holding strengthened flaxseed. September lifted 4½; October, 4; November, 4½, and December, 3.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The raw sugar market was easier early today under increased offerings, with prices declining 1-32c. There were sales of 7000 bags of Cuban from store and 21,000 for prompt shipment to a local refiner at 4.37c, duty paid. The raw sugar futures market was easier under renewed September liquidation and selling of later positions by houses with trade and European connections. The increased offerings in the spot market, principally of duty-free sugars, promoted the selling pressure, with midday prices 3 to 5 points net lower. The refined market was steady and unchanged to 5 points higher, the list ranging from 5.40c to 5.60c for fine granulated, although it was said that most of the higher-priced refiners were accepting orders at 5.50c. A fair inquiry was reported and there were evidences of further export business being put through.

Sugar futures closed easy. Approximate sales, 63,000 tons; September, 2.49c; December, 2.63c; January, 2.64c; March, 2.70c; May, 2.78c.

Oil Production Decreases.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The daily average gross crude oil production in the United States decreased 21,450 barrels for the week ending Aug. 15, totaling 2,117,750 barrels, says the weekly summary of the American Petroleum Institute today.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Directors of the Texas-Gulf Sulphur Co. today placed the stock on an annual dividend basis of $8 a share, with declaration of a quarterly disbursement of $2, payable Sept. 15 to holders of record Aug. 31. In the previous quarter $1.75 was paid and an extra dividend of 50c.

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, Aug. 20.—The raw market was quiet today with prices in some instances showing a slight tendency to ease off. Michigan delaines have sold at 52c grease basis and fine Ohio fleece wools at 54c which is somewhat under the level ten days ago. The majority of dealers however are not pressing sales and some are even quoting higher levels.

By the Associated Press.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 20.—Four investigations were under way today to determine the responsibility for the explosion of the boiler on the excursion steamer Mackinac in Newport Harbor Tuesday evening, which has claimed 40 lives.

Four persons are missing and it is believed they may have jumped overboard and drowned.

State boiler inspectors, who visited the death ship yesterday, said that the boiler was cracked.

POOR LITTLE PRODIGY

By LUCY LOWELL

POOR little Prodigy!

I've just been calling upon her. I mean I called upon her mother, but it was the Prodigy's day at home. Every day is the Prodigy's day where she lives.

Somehow I can't get the feel of her out of my mind. It's a sense of something missing—wholesomeness, perhaps.

You know the gorgeous roses that bloom under forced growth in hothouses? Great red roses whose leaves nevertheless are bleached almost white, without one bit of perfume?

They are like the Prodigy. For she, too, has a certain gorgeousness without any of the fragrance of normal, happy childhood.

She is 9 years old and all through grammar school. A fashionable girl's school gave her a scholarship, and there she shines, studying French, music and such graceful things, besides a few subjects like philosophy.

She'll discuss any sort of syllogism with you, will this girl of 9, and wear you out on it before she proves how little you know about anything.

There she'll sit, the center of a circle of mother's admiring or gasping guests, and explain to them just why the Freudian theory isn't as practical as it might be.

Or she'll tell you what made Ghengis Khan a mighty strategist, or who pitched for the Giants four years ago, and his record.

In her pretty, shapeless little girl dresses with the buckles on her little shoes gleaming and the light falling softly on her thin hair that hasn't yet outgrown its baby tow-color.

Talking in a jerky, piping voice with wise little, cold little gray eyes piercing your polite interest. They seem to demand something, those gray eyes; perhaps like this:

"Look at me; hear me; consider me! Don't you envy me, you ordinary mortal?"

And most folks who see and hear and consider do envy her, both for what she is now and what they declare she will be one day. Even Mother talks all the time about her brilliant future.

Will it be brilliant? I wonder! I've known and heard of other child prodigies. One of them, graduate of a famous university when he still was in his early teens, keeps a little country store. Another, who entered college at the age of 12, and who lived on his reputation as a prodigy after his graduation till everybody became rather fed up, never has done anything to speak of.

The fact is that I can't think of a single man or woman of spectacular achievement who was anything but a rather ordinary kid.

So it seems to me that it's the ordinary kid who is to be envied, both as a kid and a future citizen.

LOVE

BY THE AUTHOR OF "ELIZABETH AND HER GERMAN GARDEN"

CHAPTER 51.

DOCTOR SANGUESA came in, all covered up in white like an angel. The partner, she was thankful to notice, didn't appear. She was examined with great care, the nurse smiling encouragingly. It was a relief to be told by the nurse, who interpreted, that her heart was sound and her lungs perfect, even though she had never supposed they weren't. At the end the nurse told her the doctor was satisfied she could stand the treatment, and asked when she would like to begin.

Catherine said she would begin at once.

Impossible. The next day?

Oh, yes, yes—the next day. And would she really—she was going to say look nice again," but said instead feel less tired?

"It's wonderful how different people feel," the nurse assured her; and Doctor Sanguesa nodded gravely, without having understood a word, and said, "We will see."

"He hasn't tried it on himself, has he?" remarked Catherine, when she was in the Rose due Barri room again, dressing.

The nurse laughed. She was a jolly-looking young woman—but perhaps she was really an old woman, who had had the treatment.

"Have you been done?" asked Catherine.

The nurse laughed again. "I shall be, if I see I'm getting old," she said.

"It really is wonderful?" asked Catherine, whose hands as she fastened her hooks were trembling with excitement.

"You wouldn't believe it," said the nurse earnestly. "I've seen men of 70 looking and behaving not a day more than 40."

"That's 30 years off," said Catherine. "And supposing they were 40 to begin with, would they have looked and behaved like ten?"

"Ah, well, that's a little much to expect, isn't it?" said the nurse, laughing again.

"I'm 47. I wouldn't at all like to end by being seven."

"Your husband would pack you off to a kindergarten, wouldn't he?" said the nurse, laughing more than ever.

Catherine laughed, too. She was so full of hope that she already felt younger. But when she put on her hat before the glass she saw she didn't anyhow look it.

"Don't I look too awful," she said, turning round frankly to the friendly nurse, who, after all, was going to be the witness of her triumphant progress backwards through the years.

"We'll soon get rid of that," said the nurse gaily. Catherinte quite loved the nurse.

It was an exciting life during the next week—so much to plan, so much to arrange, and she herself buoyant with hope and delight. She couldn't, of course, leave London during her treatment, so to Christopher's astonishment she urged him to go to Scotland without her.

"But, Catherine"——

"Go and have a good time, Chris darling."

"Without you?"

"I must stay in London."

"In London?"

"Yes. Virginia may want me."

"Now, what in God's name, Catherine, is all this about Virginia? The other day"——

Then she told him, secure in the knowledge that she was so soon going to be young again—she didn't in the least mind being a grandmother if she wasn't going to look like one; on the contrary, to look like a girl and yet be a grandmother struck her as to the last degree chic—that Virginia was expecting a baby in September, and as babies sometimes appeared before they ought, she must be within reach.

Well, that was all right; he understood that. What he didn't understand was Catherine's detachment. Why she seemed not to mind his leaving her. He couldn't believe it. And when it became finally evident that such was her real attitude and no pretense at all about it, he was deeply hurt. Incredibly, she genuinely wanted him to go.

"You love Virginia more than me," he said, his heart suddenly hot with jealousy.

"Oh, Chris, don't be silly," said Catherine impatiently.

She had never since their marriage told him not to be silly in that sensible, matter-of-fact way. What had come over her? He, who had been feeling he couldn't breathe for all the love there was about, now found himself gasping for want of it. The atmosphere had suddenly gone clear and rarefied. Catherine seemed to be thinking of something that wasn't him and once or twice forgot to kiss him. Forgot to kiss him! He was deeply wounded. And she was so unaccountably cheerful, too. She not only seemed to be thinking of something else, but seemed amused by it, hugging whatever it was with delight. She was excited. What was she excited about. Surely not because she was going to be a grandmother? Surely that would make her brood more than ever on the difference in their ages?

"She wants me to go to Scotland with you," he said, bursting in one day on Lewes. "She wants me to go away without her. Doesn't care a hang. Four solid weeks. The whole of August."

"Baby?" Lewes did not look up.

"Due in September."

"What? But surely"——

"Oh, don't be a fool. Virginia's. She won't leave London. Why she can't go somewhere round near Chickover, where I could go, too, and be with her and get some golf as well— Lewes, old man, I believe she's fed up with me."

In his turn Lewes told him not to be a fool; but the mere thought of Catherine, his Catherine, being fed up with him as he put it, sent him rushing back to her to see if it could possibly be true.

She was so airy, so much detached.

"Now, Chris, don't be absurd. Of course you must have a good holiday and get out of London. It's lucky that you have your friend to go with——" That was the sort of thing.

"But, Catherine, how can you want me to? Don't you love me any more?"

"Of course I love you. Which is why I want you to go to Scotland."

This was true. The treatment was being gone through for love of him, and he must go to Scotland because of the treatment. She was to have as much quiet as possible during it—"No husbands."

said Doctor Sanguesa—"You've got to be a grass widow for a little while," interpreted the nurse. "You must go to Scotland," still further interpreted Catherine.

But he couldn't go at once. It was still only July. The first two treatments took place while Christopher was still in London, and as it was impossible without rousing his suspicions to keep him entirely at arm's length, she wasn't surprised when the effect of them was to make her feel more tired than ever.

"It's often like that to begin with," encouraged the nurse. "Especially if you're not having complete rest from worries at home."

Did she mean husbands by worries, Catherine wondered? There certainly wasn't complete rest from that sort of worry, then, for Christopher, as Catherine apparently cooled, became more and more as he used to be, and possessed by the fear that he was somehow losing her re-discovered how much he loved her.

He had, of course, always intensely loved her, but he had felt the need of pauses. In her love there had been no pauses, and gradually the idea of suffocation had got hold of him. Now, so suddenly, so unaccountably, she seemed to be all pause. She tried to avoid him; she even suggested, on the plea that the nights were hot, that he should sleep in the dressing room.

"I can't go to Scotland and leave you. Damn golf. I simply can't," he said at last.

And she, as cool as a little cucumber and as bright as a gay little button—the comparisons were his—told him he simply had to, and that when he came back he would find they were going to be happier than ever.

"You'll love me more than ever," she said, laughing, for though the treatment was extraordinarily exhausting her spirits those days were bright with faith.

"Rot. Nobody could love you more than I do now, so what's the good of talking like that? Catherine, what has happened to you? Tell me."

All this made Catherine very happy. She began to see benefits in the treatment other than the ones Doctor Sanguesa had guaranteed.

DUTCH SALAD.

To two cupfuls of thinly sliced cabbage, add a heaping cupful of cold diced potatoes, a cupful of diced cold carrots and green peas cooked and drained, a large grated onion, pepper, salt and a tablespoonful of sugar. Mash in a boiled dressing and serve in a salad bowl lined with carefully washed red beet leaves. Boiled dressing—Mix together a half-teaspoonful each of mustard and salt, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, and a half teaspoonful of cornstarch. Add the yolks of two eggs, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, quarter cupful each of vinegar and water, cook over hot water and add a little whipped cream when cold.

Dinner.

Baked Eggs With Cheese.

1 cupful, or 4 ounces, of grated cheese.
1 cupful of fine, soft stale bread crumbs.
A few grains of Cayenne pepper.

Break the eggs into a buttered baking dish or into ramekins and cook them in a hot oven until they begin to turn white around the edge. Cover with the mixture of crumbs, cheese and seasonings. Brown in a very hot oven. In preparing this dish it is essential that the oven be very hot or the egg will be too much cooked by the time the cheese is brown. To avoid this, some cooks cover the eggs with white sauce before adding crumbs.

The food value of the dish is very close to that of a pound of beef of average composition.

For those who are particularly fond of cheese the amount of cheese in this recipe may be very much increased, thus making a much more nourishing dish. Or the amount may be reduced so as to give hardly more than a suggestion of the flavor of cheese.

Planked Whitefish.

Clean and split a whitefish. Put skin side down on a buttered oak plank, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and brush over with melted butter. Bake 30 minutes in hot oven. Remove from oven and, using pastry bag and tube, make a border of mashed or duchess potatoes around the plank. Around fish lay three small tomatoes peeled and cut in halves. Cover tomatoes with two green peppers and one shallot that have been chopped fine and seasoned with one-half teaspoon salt. Put one tablespoon butter in pieces over fish, bake 15 minutes or until cooked through, remove from oven, sprinkle three tablespoons lemon juice over all, and garnish with shadow potatoes, lemons slices and parsley.

Why Men Who Play Don't Have Hysterics

By WINIFRED BLACK

CHARLOTE PERKINS STETSON GILLMAN, the clever lady with the long name hasn't much use for men.

She says they are unreasonable and she thinks they are stupid and she has written an article saying that men are nothing but little boys—never were and never will be.

"Look at the way they go crazy about games," says Mrs. Gillman—"Imagine a six-foot man going perfectly wild about a baseball game and making some baseball player a hero."

Mrs. Gillman has a good deal more to say about men than this, but I want to talk about the little boys grown-up idea.

It's true in a way—most of the things Mrs. Gillman says, are true, in a way, but somehow I don't always like the way—do you?

Men do act like boys a lot of the time. They never seem to grow up as women do.

What would you think if you went in to see your dearest friend or your dearest foe either, for that matter, and found her sitting on the floor playing with paper dolls as she did when she was seven years old?

But you think nothing of hearing your brother or your father or your husband go raving crazy over somebody's home run, just as he did when he was seven.

And if he could—that husband of yours would fly kites every March. Oh, yes, he would, if he wasn't afraid of what the neighbors might say—and you know your father neglects his business to go out and play golf every afternoon of his life, time or no time, money or no money.

Would you leave your baking—would you forget a cake in the oven or a shortcake in the making and run over to your neighbors to see somebody play "Andy, Andy, over" or "Three Old Cat?"

You certainly would not and if you did your friends would say that you were simple-minded.

Men—oh, men are different—very different. No matter how old they are, or how gray they are or how rich they are or how poor they are or how wise they are or how dull they are, they never forget how to play.

And there's where men have the advantage of women. That's where they show their plain, every-day common sense. The man who plays games doesn't have hysterics—that's one thing. I know a woman who loves to go gypsying and go she will, rain or shine, ill or well, tired or rested, and there is something fresh and childlike and interested and interesting in that woman that makes her a man.

The more they are boys the better they are.

Child Management

By DR. D. A. THOM.

Issued to the Post-Dispatch by the Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor.

NO. 11—CHILDHOOD FEARS.

FEAR is perhaps the most common emotion which beings experience, yet it is extremely doubtful if the child has any inherent fears at birth. Most fears are produced by some experience through which the individual has had to pass in early life.

Some children are afraid of anything new or strange, but they soon become accustomed to it if they are allowed to do so gradually. It is a mistaken notion that a child should be pushed into a situation where he is afraid in an effort to "train him." A little child who cries at his first experience of bathing in the big ocean is not helped by being thrown in, but on the contrary gets an experience of dread and fear which may not be easily overcome.

Fear of animals may occur at a very early age, but usually passes off as soon as the child becomes accustomed to the sight of them, unless he has some especially unfortunate experience in being frightened either by the animal itself or by threats that the animal will get him if he is not a good boy.

Many children are threatened with the policeman or the "bogie man." Sometimes mother speaks to the ragman and asks him to take a naughty boy away in his bag. It is particularly unfortunate when mothers use a threat of the doctor to frighten their children into obedience, for the time may come when a child's life may depend on a doctor's being able to get him to take treatment without crying or struggling. "The doctor cuts the fingers of little boys who touch things" is not good preparation for such an emergency.

Often fears are due to unpleasant experiences for which the parents are in no way to blame, and may even extend to things which are merely associated with the unpleasant experience. For instance, a child who has been hurt in a doctor's office may be afraid to enter any place which looks like a doctor's office. A book agent, with his black bag, may be a terrifying figure to such a child. This is a very different thing from fears that are produced in the child's mind by threats. The fears based on a real experience can be overcome by gradually associating pleasanter things with the same situation or by appealing to the child's courage to face his fears bravely.

The Surest Killer of Flies And Mosquitoes Ever Made. Demand Black Flag!

BLACK FLAG IS different—it kills every single fly, mosquito and roach that gets into your home—not just a few. It contains a secret vegetable ingredient that is the surest death ever discovered for insect pests. Bugs breathe it and die. But it is absolutely harmless to humans and animals.

BLACK FLAG kills and rids a home of flies, mosquitoes and roaches, ants, bedbugs and moths, dog fleas, plant lice and chicken lice.

You have got to kill every single bug to get rid of them completely. Yet ordinary insecticides kill, at best, only 6 out of every 10. Four get away and breed hundreds which return.

But BLACK FLAG is deadlier. It kills every single bug. It rids a home of insect pests when all else fails. Both forms—BLACK FLAG powder and liquid—are equally effective, with these three exceptions—never use any liquid on furs; use the powder to make them mothproof. Use the powder, also, to kill dog fleas and lice.

Many people prefer the liquid to kill flies, mosquitoes and moths—and the powder to kill roaches, ants, bedbugs, dog fleas and lice.

BLACK FLAG costs less. Powder, 15c up. Powder Gun, 10c. Liquid, 25c up. Sprayer, 45c. Introductory package containing can of liquid and sprayer for only 65c. At drug, grocery, hardware and department stores. Buy BLACK FLAG today.

FRIENDSHIP.

THERE is no spell that can surely bring bliss that will not depart; man knows no charm to make gladness wing straight to his waiting heart. Yet he is ever a-thirst for these, lures that are bright as the sun, after them searching the seven seas, searching and never done. I know the answer to all this quest, I who sought, too, in vain something far higher than fame's high crest, something far dearer than gain. Someone who waits at the long day's end, here is the key to all cheer; someone who shows me the worth of a friend, someone whose smile is dear. True friends bring joy, that men seek in vain over life's lonely ways; banishing shadows of care and pain, brightening darkest days.

The highest degree of earthly happiness is quiet.

Spooky Returns to the Old Orchard

Who e'er would get enough of sleep
—Old Mother Nature.

SPOOKY THE SCREECH OWL doesn't like to have a fuss made about him. That is one reason why he keeps out of sight in daylight. Of course, another reason is that the daytime is his time for sleeping. But Spooky got very little sleep after giving that young Woodpecker, who happened to look in at his doorway, such a fright. You see, after the other birds had departed, Drummer the Woodpecker came to that tree and began drumming on the back side of it close to where Spooky was trying to get a nap.

There was no sleeping with that rat-a-tat-tat going. It was as if Drummer was pounding right on his ears. He climbed up to his doorway and poked his head out. He was hissing angrily. When Spooky is angry he hisses. Almost at once Sammy Jay spied him, and calling to everybody within hearing, Sammy flew over to torment Spooky.

Now, Spooky is a little fellow. He really couldn't fight back, so once more he disappeared from view, which was the wisest thing to do. He went down inside that hollow in the tree. But now he was no better off than he had been in the first place because Drummer the Woodpecker was still hammering away.

After a while Drummer grew tired of drumming and flew away. It became quiet. Spooky went to sleep. But he hadn't been asleep very long before Mrs. Drummer took it into her head to drum on that tree.

So it went all the rest of the day. Perhaps you can guess how glad Spooky was when the Black Shadows came creeping through the Green Forest. Spooky didn't waste any time. He flew straight over to the Old Orchard. When he got there, he went straight to his old home. Mrs. Spooky was sitting in the doorway.

"How are the children, my dear?" asked Spooky.

"Well, I hope," replied Mrs. Spooky, "but I don't know much about them."

"What do you mean?" demanded Spooky.

Mrs. Spooky sighed. Spooky wasn't sure whether it was a sigh of thankfulness or a sigh of sorrow. "They have started out in the Great World," said she.

"You mean they have left home?" asked Spooky.

Mrs. Spooky nodded. "Yes," said she. "You know I have been showing them about for some little time. Now they have decided that they want to be by themselves and so they have left the Old Orchard."

"I suppose," said Spooky, hesitating a wee bit, "that now there'll be room for me in there."

"Plenty of room," replied Mrs. Spooky. "I certainly miss those children, but they were a great care. It really is a relief not to have to think of any meals but my own."

"I know," said Spooky, trying to look wise.

"Huh!" sniffed Mrs. Spooky, "much you know about it! It's the mother that has to do the work, and don't you forget it. I'm as thin as a shadow. Make yourself at home if you want to while I go out hunting for a dinner. It is a long time since I have had all I could eat."

"How are the children, my dear?" asked Spooky

And so it was that Spooky returned to the Old Orchard, while over in the apartment tree in the Green Forest little Mrs. Whitefoot and her family, and little Mrs. Timmy the Flying Squirrel and her family continued to live in peace.

FULL UP

A FILLING STATION, now and then,
Is relished by the best of men;
But one to every motor car
Is going just a bit too far.

A filling station we confess,
Is necessary more or less,
But six, or seven to a block
Is what you'd call an overstock.

But, after all is said and done,
It's gas that makes the motor run;
And, filling stations will abound

MAYBE.

What are the filling stations going to do when the gas supply runs out? Maybe by that time the dry law will have been repealed and they can turn them into saloons.

With August half way over our thoughts naturally turn to September. We have a warm spot in our heart for September because it comes next to October, the most glorious month of the year.

Speaking of October, have you ever drunk any brown October ale? Neither have we.

We don't know that brown October ale is better than any other ale but it certainly sounds better. However, with its nuts and apples and frost on the pumpkin and everything, October doesn't need any ale to make the finest month of the year.

DIRIGIBLES BEST FOR EXPLORATION IN THE FAR NORTH, MACMILLAN SAYS

EXPEDITION MAY RETURN NEXT MONTH

Scientific Investigations Will Be Carried Out in Greenland, Labrador and Baffin Island.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Lighter-than-air machines like the dirigibles Los Angeles and Shenandoah are, in the opinion of Commander Donald B. MacMillan, the type of craft best suited to overcome the ice hazards that the Far North presents to the explorer.

The continually drifting ice floes, he has informed the National Geographic Society by radio, make uncertain the landing of heavier-than-air machines, as one day a fjord may be open, only to be icebound the next.

Under such conditions, he said, a cache established by an airplane is not a help but a menace, for if depended upon and a plane arrives out of fuel, destruction is certain.

"The lighter-than-air machines can do the work," he added, "and should do it at the earliest opportunity."

Navy Flyers Disappointed.

This message, received late yesterday, made no mention of how long the explorer expected to remain in the Arctic regions collecting scientific information, now that it has been decided to abandon efforts to fly over the uncharted Polar Sea. However, in a dispatch received by Daniel W. Hoegg, managing editor of the Portland (Me.) Evening Express, MacMillan expressed the hope of returning next month.

It also was learned that about the time officers of the Geographic Society, which is sponsor for the expedition, decided to abandon the polar flight, Lieut.-Com. Byrd, in charge of the navy planes with the party, was still hoping for one more chance to try his planes against the northern ice barriers.

The navy flier was not wholly convinced of the futility of further efforts to penetrate the Far North and was anxious to make one more flight with maximum loads before admitting that the task could not be done.

Damaged Plane Repaired.

With the Polar flight called off, the expedition is expected to carry out its further explorations promptly, as it now has two airplanes in serviceable condition, repairs to one which was partly damaged by fire Tuesday having been completed.

Although the dispatch to Portland said MacMillan would return home next month, the belief was expressed by officials here that it would probably be October before he arrived at Wiscasset, Me. It required six weeks for the expedition to reach Etah, Greenland, the main base, they pointed out, and it would be natural to assume an equal length of time for the return voyage.

The explorations to be conducted in Greenland, Labrador and Baffin Island can be carried out expeditiously with the swift-moving airplanes, and so it is not believed his work will delay materially the progress of the ships southward. Details of these plans, however, have not been received in Washington.

MacMillan's Message.

The message received by the National Geographic Society from MacMillan yesterday said:

"Our plans are now to give the photographers and scientists of the National Geographic Society every opportunity to do a big valuable work by stopping at various places in the Greenland and Labrador coasts. All are enthusiastic and eager to embrace every opportunity.

"I am convinced that Far Northern Arctic work is extremely hazardous in heavier-than-air machines simply because landing places are uncertain and caches of food and gas cannot be relied upon. A fjord is free today and icebound tomorrow. A cache under such conditions is not a help but a menace, for if depended upon and a plane arrives out of fuel, destruction is the inevitable result.
